Scenes in the Senate Yesterday—Mr. Genet's Amendments to the Charter Manfully Voted Down—Applause on the Passage of the New Measures.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ALBANY, Tuesday, March 5, 1870.

In accordance with the action of the Senate last evening the Election bill and the new charter were taken up as the special order in the Senate this morning immediately after the reading of the journal. The limited space outside the railing of the Chamber was filled with spectators, among whom were half a dozen ladies. The members of the Lower House manifested very little interest in what was going on above, and very few of them made their appearance during the session. After prayer by Rev. Mr. WAYMAN, President BASCH announced the special order of the day, and called Mr. LEWIS, of Erie, to the chair. On taking the chair Mr. LEWIS said the Senate was now in Committee of the Whole on the special order, the "act in relation to elections in the City and County of New-York," this bill having precedence over the charter in the general orders. The Clerk was directed to read the bill through by sections, it being agreed that no amendments should be discussed till after the whole bill had been read. After the reading was finished, several amendments of minor importance were offered and adopted. Senator KENNEDY offered an important amendment to the ninth section, which was understood to have been agreed upon at the Republican caucus last evening. The amendment requires the registers to place opposite the name of any person whose name is registered, (in case he be requested so to do by any person who doubts his right to vote,) the words "to be challenged;" and, when such person appears to vote, it shall be the duty of the Inspector to challenge him, whether requested to do so or not. The amendment was adopted after considerable discussion, in which Senator MURPHY took occasion to express his opposition to all Registry laws, which he said had proved useless in securing honest voting, and only tended to obstruct the free exercise of the elective franchise. GENET and CREAMER also opposed the amendment. Mr. TWEED advocated it, and said he was ready to go to the extreme limit in framing a law that would secure fair elections. The complaints had been long and loud against the gross frauds perpetrated upon the ballot-box in New-York City, and the public demanded that they should be stopped. He was determined, so far as his influence and vote would go, to bring about a state of things where every man's vote should count one, and no man's vote should count more than one, and he was willing to accept any amendment that would secure that end. Two or three other amendments were then proposed and adopted. Mr. CREAMER offered an amendment giving the appointment of inspectors and canvassers at the election in May to the Mayor instead of to the Police Commissioners, where it now lies. He said that if the advocates of this bill and of the one that was to follow it (the charter) could trust the Mayor to appoint all the heads of departments and bureaus, including the Police Commissioners, they certainly could afford to give him the appointment of inspectors and canvassers. CREAMER's amendment was lost—yeas 22, nays 14. The bill was then ordered to a third reading, nem. con.

THE CHARTER.

The Chairman then announced the next special order to be Assembly bill No. 665—an "act to reorganize the local Government of New-York." Mr. KENNEDY informed the Chair that he was unable to find the bill on his files. Mr. GENET said: "The gentleman has had it in his pocket for the last week." [Laughter.] The Clerk was directed to read the bill through by sections. After reading section 27, Mr. GENET said that it was getting near the hour of adjournment, and he moved that the further reading of the bill be dispensed with, and that the Committee rise, report progress and ask leave to sit again. The motion was lost by a large majority and the Clerk continued the reading. At the conclusion, Mr. GENET asked if the Senator from the Third (Mr. TWEED) would consent to allow the Committee to report progress on the bill and ask leave to sit again. Mr. TWEED replied that he had no objection to the gentleman moving to report progress. Mr. GENET wished to know whether, if he made such a motion, it was the intention of Mr. TWEED to move to disagree from the report of the Committee, and order the bill to a third reading. Mr. TWEED replied that it was his intention to use all the power the Almighty had given him to press the bill through to a third reading.

THE FATE OF AMENDMENTS.

Mr. GENET then said he proposed to offer some amendments, which he asked to be read. The first amendment proposed to allow the present Board of Aldermen to hold over till the Spring of 1871, and then to be elected for two years. Mr. CREAMER advocated the amendment, and said he did not propose to vote for a bill that would legislate out of office the present Board of Aldermen, many of whom were his friends. The amendment was lost, only four Senators voting for it. The next amendment proposed to elect the Mayor, under the new charter, in the present, at the same time as the Judiciary election. Mr. GENET said that the present Mayor was no better in character or antecedents than the humblest member of the Common Council, and if they were to be legislated out of office this Spring why not he? He repeated that the present Mayor was not a whit better than the worst member of the Common Council, and if his history were to be written the facts would show it. And yet he was to remain in office, and have the appointment of the heads of every branch of the City Government, while his successor would have no power at all, as all these appointees were to hold office for five years or more. The power thus given to the present Mayor would enable him to wipe out every vestige of life in the City Government, and would lead to corruption such as had never before been witnessed in that City. The amendment was lost by a large majority. The next amendment proposed that no member of the present Legislature should be appointed to office under the new charter. This was lost by a large majority without debate. Several other amendments proposed by Mr. GENET were also lost by an average vote of 27 to 4. Among these amendments was one to leave the Central Park Commission intact, another to make the new Police Commissioners' salaries $5,000 per annum, &c., &c. GENET's amendments having all been rejected Mr. TWEED sent to the Clerk's desk an amendment abolishing the Board of Supervisors; also, one providing for a minority representation of five in the Board of Aldermen; also, one providing for the election of Mayor in May next, together with several other amendments of minor importance, many of them the same as those offered by GENET. Mr. GENET also offered a new amendment striking out the section creating a Department of Public Docks, and imposing the duties thereof on the Department of Public Works. He claimed that this was a tissue of frauds, and would only add to the number of officers and salaries, and thereby increase the heavy burden of taxation under which the tax-payers of New-York were suffering. He also offered another amendment to reduce the number of Fire Commissioners from five to three, and still another to prohibit any department from employing any other counsel at the public expense than the Corporation Counsel, and amendments striking out the clause allowing the Controller to adjust and settle claims against the City. He said it is believed that the present Controller, or any other man who might be elected to succeed him, would use this power to his own advantage.

THE CENTRAL PARK CLAUSE.

Mr. TRAVER presented a petition from a large number of tax-payers against the abolition of the Central Park Commission, and asked that a separate vote be taken on his amendment excepting the Park Commission from the operation of the charter. The vote was taken, and only three Senators—MORTON, GENET and TRAVER—voted for it.

SECTARIAN SCHOOLS.

Mr. TRAVER then asked that a vote be taken on his amendment inserting in the charter a clause abolishing the law inserted in last year's tax-levy appropriating money to sectarian schools. Mr. PARKER said that he presumed the gentleman (TRAVER) did not consider this amendment in good faith, but only to delay or intimidate Senators. When the proper time came he should be prepared to vote on this sectarian school question but this was not the time nor the place to raise the question. Senator MURPHY also took the ground that the charter was not the place to insert a clause abolishing that law. Mr. GENET, taking his cue from TRAVER, tried to whip in votes against the charter by advocating the proposed amendment, but in reply to a question from Mr. WOODIN he admitted that he was opposed to the abolition of the law appropriating money to sectarian schools. Mr. WOODIN said this question was not now before the Senate, but, when it was, the Senator from the Eighth (GENET) would find him and other Senators ready to make their record on the question, and such a record as the people would approve. Mr. KENNEDY and Mr. WOOD took similar ground, and said that the time to abolish the sectarian school law would be when the tax levy, in which the law was inserted, came up for consideration. The vote was then taken on THAYER's amendment and lost by a large majority.

THE ELECTION BILL AGAIN.

On motion of Mr. TWEED, the Committee then rose, the President resumed the chair, and the Election bill was first ordered to a third reading. Several unimportant amendments had been offered by GENET, and voted down. Mr. CHAPMAN then moved that the bill now have its third reading, which was carried by 30 to 1. The bill was then read a third time and passed by a unanimous vote.

PASSAGE OF THE CHARTER BILL.

After a recess of half an hour the Senate reassembled and took up the charter. GENET renewed the more important amendments offered by him in Committee of the Whole, and used the same arguments in their support, but they were all voted down by large majorities. THAYER resumed his amendments, which were also voted down. The charter was then read third time, and passed by a vote of 30 to 2, GENET and THAYER being the only Senators voting in the negative. The announcement of the vote was followed by a general clapping of hands in the lobbies, and the Senate immediately adjourned to 7½ P. M.

THE ELECTION BILL IN THE HOUSE.

In the meantime the Election bill had been sent down to the House, where it was put through post haste, under a call for the previous question, and received 111 votes, not a single member voting against it. Both bills are now ready for the signature of the Governor, which will probably be affixed this evening. S.

The Charter and Election Bills Signed by the Governor—The Canal Tolls.

(Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 5.—The Governor this evening signed the new charter and the Election bill, both of which are now laws. There is general satisfaction on all sides at the work done today, and not a man of the scores of New-York politicians now here will admit that he ever sympathized with the faction known as the O'Brien Democracy. Even GENET, who may be considered the last of the Mohicans, appears to be satisfied with the result, and exhibits no disposition to prolong the fight beyond an anxiety to bet $10,000 with some one that HOFFMAN will not be next Governor. He has been offering the bet all the evening, and has not yet found a taker.

EVENING SESSION OF THE SENATE.

The Senate had a session this evening and adopted HARDENBERGH's joint resolution to empower the Canal Board to reduce canal tolls at their discretion. The Excise bill was also discussed at great length on the question of concurring in the Assembly amendments, but the final vote was postponed till to-morrow.

THE ELECTION LAW.

The Act Relating to New-York as Passed by the Legislature and Signed by the Governor.

ALBANY, April 5.—The following is the New-York Election law as passed by the Legislature:

SECTION 1. Hereafter, all officers to be elected by the people in the City and County of New-York shall be chosen at the general election in November, except in cases where other elections may be authorized by law.

SEC. 2. At elections hereafter to be held in the City and County of New-York, the boxes to be used in receiving the ballots thereof shall be marked consecutively, as follows: No. 1, "President;" No. 2, "General;" No. 3, "Congress;" No. 4, "Senate;" No. 5, "Assembly;" No. 6, "City;" No. 7, "School;" No. 8, "Justices;" No. 9, "Inspectors of Election;" and at every election hereafter to be held in said City and county, such number of boxes, marked as above directed, shall be furnished as may be required by law, to receive the ballots to be used at such election.

SEC. 3. The ballot for electors of President and Vice-President shall be the same as now prescribed by law, and, when folded, shall be indorsed, or show on the outside the words "President, No. 1," and be deposited in box No. 1. All other officers in whose election all the voters of said City and County either participate or except those herein designated to be voted for on separate ballots, shall be voted for upon one ballot, which, upon the face thereof, shall contain a designation of the office and the name or names of the person or persons to be voted for, or such of them as any voter may desire to vote for, and which, when folded, shall be indorsed, or show on the outside, the words "General, No. 2," and be deposited in box No. 2. The name of the person designated for Representative in Congress shall be on a separate ballot, which, upon the face thereof, shall contain a designation of the office and the district for which the officer is to be elected, and which, when folded, shall be indorsed, or show on the outside, the words "Congress, No. 3," and be deposited in box No. 3. The name of the person designated for Senator shall be on a separate ballot, which, upon the face thereof, shall contain a designation of the office and the district for which the officer is to be elected, and which, when folded, shall be indorsed, or show on the outside, the words "Senate, No. 4," and be deposited in box No. 4. The name of the person designated for member of Assembly shall be on a separate ballot, which, upon the face thereof, shall contain a designation of the office and the district for which the officer is to be elected, and which, when folded, shall be indorsed, or show on the outside, the words, "City, No. 6," and be deposited in box No. 6. The name of the person designated for Trustee of Common Schools shall be on a separate ballot, which, upon the face thereof, shall contain a designation of the office and the ward for which the officer is to be elected, and which, when folded, shall be indorsed, or show on the outside, the word "School, No. 7," and be deposited in box No. 7. The names of the persons designated for Police Justice and Justice of the District Court shall be upon one ballot, which ballot, upon the face thereof, shall contain a designation of the office and the district for which the officers are to be elected, and the name or names of the person or persons to be voted for, or such of them as any voter may desire to vote for, and which, when folded, shall be indorsed, or show upon the outside, the words "Justices, No. 8," and be deposited in box No. 8. The names of the persons designated for Inspectors of Election in the several election districts in each ward shall be upon one ballot, as provided by section 4 of this act, which ballot, upon the face thereof, shall contain a designation of the office and the ward, and election district for which the officers are to be elected, and the name or names of the person or persons to be voted for for each office, or such of them as any voter may desire to vote for, and which, when folded, shall be indorsed, or show on the outside the words "Inspectors of Election, No. 9," and be deposited in box No. 9.

SEC. 4. All ballots shall hereafter be conveyed in the following order:

1. President. 2. General. 3. Congress. 4. Senator. 5. Assembly. 6. City. 7. School. 8. Justices. 9. Inspectors of Election.

SEC. 5. All elections hereafter held in the City and County of New-York the polls shall be opened at 6 o'clock in the morning, and close at 5 o'clock in the evening.

SEC. 6. At the election for Judges to be held on the third Tuesday in May, in the year 1870, and thereafter at the general election to be held in November in each year, instead of the general election to be held in the City of New-York, there shall be elected in each ward of New-York two inspectors of election for each election district, each inspector of election shall be voted for on a separate ballot, which ballot shall be of the color of which they may be designated on the ballot. The ballot upon the face thereof, shall be in the following form:

FOR INSPECTOR OF ELECTION FOR THE FIRST WARD.

Election District.

1st—John Doe and Richard Roe.

2d—Richard Roe and John Doe.

and so on for as many election districts as there may be in the ward. The votes for each candidate, at such election shall be returned to the County canvassers by the inspectors of election, and counted and declared by said county canvassers in the same manner as is provided by law for the return of votes for other officers and declaration thereon. The inspectors of election chosen at the special election in the year 1870 shall hold office until the third Tuesday in May, 1871, and those thus elected at the general election in the year 1870, and thereafter, shall hold office for one year, commencing on the first day of January succeeding their election. No ballot for inspectors of election shall be counted which contains more than two names for any one election district.

SEC. 7. In addition to the inspectors of election herein provided to be elected, the Mayor of the City of New-York shall annually appoint an inspector of election in each election district, the person who received the highest number of votes for inspector of election in such election district at the preceding election, the two inspectors of election who may be declared by the Board of County Canvassers to have been elected; provided, however, that the person first appointed shall be from the party in general political opposition to the party in power, by their electing the two successful candidates for inspectors of election. Such appointment shall be made within ten days after the Board of County Canvassers shall make their statement and declaration of the result of the election for inspectors of election. And in case two persons from the party in general opposition to State power shall have received the next highest number of votes, then the said Mayor shall appoint one of the said two as such additional inspector of election, in his discretion. The inspectors of election thus appointed shall hold their offices for the same term as those elected, and shall be subject to the same duties of the ward for any election district in which they may be appointed. The said Mayor shall duly issue his certificate of appointment to each person so appointed by him as such inspector of election within ten days after such appointment, and shall also cause a list of such appointed inspectors of election, signed by him officially, to be published in the papers employed by the Corporation in said City for ten days immediately succeeding such selection and appointment. The inspector of election for each election district of said City and County, who shall be thus appointed, together with the two elected, shall form the Board of Inspectors of election in each district. For any action required of any Board of Inspectors of election of any election district, a majority of such Board (consisting of a majority) shall be necessary and shall be sufficient.

SEC. 8. In case of any vacancy, by death or otherwise, in the office of inspector of election, such vacancy shall be filled by the Mayor of the City of New-York. And the certificate of the appointment to such vacancy, signed by said Mayor, shall be filed with the Bureau of Elections hereinafter provided for. In all cases where a vacancy shall thus be filled, the political division of the Board, as provided for by section 7 of this act, shall be preserved. All inspectors of election, whether elected or appointed, except such as may be appointed to fill vacancies on the day of election, shall appear before the chief of the bureau of elections, within twenty days after they shall be declared elected, or shall be duly appointed, as hereinabove provided, and shall take and subscribe to the oath of office, as prescribed by the Constitution. Any inspector of election failing to appear and take and subscribe to such oath within the time aforesaid, shall be deemed to have declined the office, and his place shall be filled as a vacancy. The Chief of the Bureau of Elections is hereby authorized and required, before administering such official oath, to ascertain and determine that the person or persons so aforesaid elected or appointed to the office of inspector of election, understands the English language by the reading and writing thereof; and if he shall upon such trial find such person cannot so read or write the English language, the said Chief of the Bureau of Election shall refuse to administer to such person such official oath, and take the place to which such person has been so elected or appointed shall thereupon become vacant. In case of any vacancy arising from this cause, the chief of the Bureau of Elections shall immediately notify the officer designated to fill vacancies of the fact, and he shall immediately fill such vacancy. In case of vacancies filled on the day of election, the oath of office shall be administered by the officer taking the vacancy, and the certificate of appointment and oath of office shall be returned by the inspectors of election, with the return hereinafter provided to be made, to the bureau of elections.

SEC. 9. In the City of New-York, the inspectors of registry, as provided by chapter 740 of the laws of 1869 and the several acts amendatory thereof, shall hold their last meeting on the Saturday and Tuesday preceding the week in which the annual election shall be to be held, and shall sit from 7 o'clock in the forenoon until 9 o'clock in the evening on each of said days, for the purpose of enrolling such applicants for registration as shall then be qualified voters. In making such register, the said inspectors shall enter the name of the person registered in alphabetical order, and a separate list of names of the persons in which shall be included, the number of the house occupied by him, and if the person so registered shall reside in a block or tenement-house, the name of the same if designated by name, and the number of the room or rooms occupied by the person so registered, if the same are numbered. On the Thursday preceding the ensuing election, the said registers shall sit at their last place of meeting, and sit during the hours aforesaid. At such meeting it shall be the right of any elector of the district to examine said register, and to require that the register shall, and it shall be their duty to, place the words "to be challenged" opposite the name of any person on the list whom he shall declare not to be, in his opinion, a qualified voter. And upon the person opposite whose name these words are placed offering his vote, the general oath as to qualifications shall be administered, and if he shall refuse to take the oath aforesaid, he shall not be permitted to vote.

SEC. 10. At every election for ward, district, city, county, State, or judicial officers, each political party shall have the right to station a challenger at place of voting, who shall be assigned such position as will enable him to see each elector as he offers his vote, and who shall be protected in the discharge of his duty by the Police.

SEC. 11. An inspector of election, or register, who shall violate any of the provisions of section 9 shall be deemed guilty of felony, and, upon conviction, shall be punished by imprisonment in the State Prison for a period not less than one nor more than five years, and shall be forever thereafter disqualified from holding any office of honor or emolument in this State. And any person convicted of improperly interfering with any challenger, or any other person lawfully in the room, provided to scrutinize the canvass, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, shall be punished by imprisonment not less than six months nor more than one year.

SEC. 12. The compensation of inspectors of election and poll clerks shall be $10 to each for each day's service at the election, which compensation shall be paid by the County Comptroller on the vouchers of the Board, but no payment shall be made to any inspector of election or poll clerk who shall not have taken and subscribed the oath or affirmation required by law. And the inspector of election and poll clerks, and clerk, without having taken and subscribed the oath or affirmation required by law, shall be deemed to be and be punished as a misdemeanor.

SEC. 13. It shall be the duty of the several Boards of Inspectors of Election to fully complete the estimate of the votes in each election district, in the order described by this act, and to make proclamation of the result, and to complete the canvass of the votes, and to seal up the box, in the manner prescribed by this act, before proceeding to the estimate and canvass of the box or boxes to be next thereafter canvassed. At the completion of the canvass of each box, the Chairman of the Board of Inspectors of Election shall make public oral proclamation of the whole number of votes in such box, and of the number of votes for each person, and for each name of the office to which such person was named on the ballots. If any inspector of election shall decline to sign any return, he shall state his reasons therefor, in writing, at the time of such refusal, and signed by him, shall be inclosed and filed with such return. The due public announcement by the inspectors of election of a district of any result shall be prima facie evidence of such result.

SEC. 14. The Board of Supervisors of the County of New-York is directed to establish a bureau of elections, in connection with the office of their clerk, and to fix the salaries of the chief and clerical force of said bureau, which salaries shall be paid as other county salaries are paid. The chief of said bureau shall be appointed by the Mayor of the City of New-York, and shall hold his office for five years. He shall appoint the clerical force necessary for the business of the bureau, of such number as may be determined upon by the Board of Supervisors. He shall prepare all the necessary forms, blanks and instructions for the use of the Boards of Inspectors of Election, and also of the Board of County Canvassers; have charge of the fitting up of polling-places, provide for furnishing said Boards with all supplies for all elections, and have the custody of the ballot-boxes belonging to said City and County, and see that the same are delivered at the places selected for holding the polls on the morning of election. On the organization of the bureau of elections, as provided for in this section, all the records filed in the bureau of elections heretofore established shall be transferred to the custody of the newly-organized bureau and filed therein; and on such organization, the bureau of elections heretofore established by authority of section 6 of the act, chapter 812 of the laws of 1868, entitled "An act amendatory of and supplementary to chapter 740 of the laws of 1866, entitled 'An act to secure to persons in the City of New-York who shall be entitled the right of suffrage,' passed May 18, 1868," shall be abolished, and section 5 of the act, chapter 812 of the laws of 1868 shall be repealed.

SEC. 15. The Chief of the Bureau of Elections, by the Boards of Inspectors of Elections, shall be furnished with a blank form for the canvass of the votes, which shall be filled in by the Boards of Inspectors of Elections, and one copy of the returns of elections, which shall be filed therein, and which may be used to canvass from by the Board of County Canvassers, in case either of the other returns be lost. It shall also be the duty of the chief of said bureau to make provision for the keeping of a tally-sheet of the votes canvassed at any county canvass.

SEC. 16. It shall be the duty of the Common Council of the City of New-York on or before the 1st day of September, in the year 1870, and in each year thereafter, to redistrict the City so that each election district shall, as near may be, contain not more than four hundred electors, taking the vote of the previous election as a basis. If the Common Council shall, in any year, fail to redistrict the City, the Mayor shall, on or before the 10th day of September, by proclamation, establish the boundaries of the election districts as above prescribed.

SEC. 17. The Common Council shall not change the boundaries of any election district after the first day of September, in any year, and shall designate the places in the several election districts where the polls shall be held, so as to be within the hours of the day of election, and to be kept open on the 10th day of September, and beginning the first Tuesday in October in each year; but no poll shall be held at any place where liquor is sold.

SEC. 18. The rent and cost of fitting up, warming, lighting, cleaning and such hiring of the place of holding, repairing and carting ballot-boxes, and of all supplies for all elections shall be a county charge, and shall be paid by the Comptroller upon proper vouchers in the same manner as the compensation of inspectors of election and poll clerks is paid. The Board of Supervisors of the County of New-York shall yearly levy upon the estates, real and personal, of said City and County, the amount estimated to be required to pay the expenses of the elections which may be held in said City and County during the year.

SEC. 19. All inspectors of election and poll clerks for any election, fill the inspectors and poll clerks herein provided for shall be elected or appointed, shall be subject to as now provided by law.

SEC. 20. This act shall be deemed a portion of the criminal law of the State, and any violation thereof shall be punished in the same manner as provided in the general statutes relating to crimes.

SEC. 21. Chapter 111 of the laws of 1869, entitled "An act to provide for the registration of voters to be held in the City and County of New-York, and the mode of conducting elections throughout the State," in so far as repealed by the act entitled "An act to amend the charter of the City of New-York, and the general laws of the State of New-York, chapter 79 of the laws of 1869, entitled 'An act provide the mode in which the votes received at general elections shall be canvassed in the City of New-York,' shall be canvassed, in the manner of electing school officers in said City, and directing a republication of the Election laws," is also hereby repealed. And all other acts or parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed so far the same affect the City and County of New-York. And all amendments in the City and County of New-York under such acts or parts of acts, or under the provisions of chapter 111 of the laws of 1869, entitled "An act amendatory of and supplementary to chapter 740 of the laws of 1866, entitled 'An act to ascertain by proof the citizens who shall be entitled to the right of suffrage,'" passed May 18, 1868, are hereby annulled.

SEC. 22. Any person who shall knowingly register or cause himself to be registered as a voter in any election district in which he is not at the time a qualified voter, and in which he is not legally entitled to vote, shall be adjudged guilty of a felony.

SEC. 23. Any person who shall knowingly vote or offer to vote at any general or charter election, in any election district in which he is not at the time legally entitled to vote, or who shall vote more than once at any such election, or who shall personate any other person, or pretended or fictitious person, and vote or offer to vote in the name of such person, or in any assumed or fictitious name, shall be adjudged guilty of felony.

SEC. 24. If any person shall, upon any pretense or inducement whatever, cause or procure, or be in any manner instrumental in causing or procuring any person to be fraudulently registered as a voter, in any election district in which such person is not at the time a legally qualified voter, or who shall cause or procure, or be in any manner instrumental in procuring, any person to vote, or to offer to vote, in any election district in which such person is not at the time a legally qualified voter therein, or who shall advise or in any manner incite any person to vote or offer to vote at any such election, in an assumed or fictitious name, shall be adjudged guilty of a felony.

SEC. 25. Any person duly convicted of either of the foregoing offenses shall upon conviction, be imprisoned in the State Prison for a term of not less than one or more than three years.

SEC. 26. Any person who shall be guilty of willful and corrupt perjury, or who shall cause himself to be registered as a voter in any election district, or in procuring or causing the name of any other person to be registered, shall be adjudged guilty of willful and corrupt perjury.

SEC. 27. Every person who shall willfully and corruptly procure any person to swear or affirm falsely, as aforesaid, shall be adjudged guilty of subornation of perjury, and shall, upon conviction thereof, suffer the punishment directed by law in cases of willful and corrupt perjury.

SEC. 28. If any officer on whom any duty is enjoined in this act, shall be guilty of any willful neglect of such duty, or of any willful violation of this act, or the execution of the same, and be thereof convicted, he shall be deemed guilty of a felony.

SEC. 29. In case any inspector of election shall knowingly permit any person to register his name as a voter in any election district, when he is not at the time a legally qualified voter, or who shall knowingly permit any person to be registered as an elector in an assumed name, or who shall cause or permit any names to be fraudulently placed upon any registry in any election district whereof he shall at the time be an inspector, or who shall knowingly and willfully permit or suffer any person to vote at any election, who is not entitled to vote therein, the said Inspector so offending shall on conviction thereof be adjudged guilty of a felony. Any person duly elected to any office in the City, in the two preceding sections mentioned, shall be sentenced to the State Prison for a term not less than one nor more than five years.

SEC. 30. Any inspector of election, or other officer, whose duty it shall be to canvass or aid in the canvass of the votes cast at any election, who shall fraudulently miscount the same, or who shall make any false or fraudulent return of the votes cast, or who shall fraudulently omit to make true and accurate returns of the votes actually cast at any election; and every person who shall in any manner hinder or delay, or prevent the proper execution of any officer, as aforesaid, to fraudulently miscount the votes cast, or to make any false or fraudulent return of such votes, or to omit to make a true and accurate return of the votes actually cast at any election; and every person who shall fraudulently alter or change in any manner any returns of votes made by any inspectors of election or other officer, shall, upon conviction, be adjudged guilty of a felony, and shall be sentenced to the State Prison for a term not less than two or more than five years.

SEC. 31. It is hereby made the special duty of the District Attorney of the County of New-York, to immediately prosecute all complaints which may be made of a violation of any of the provisions of this act to final judgment, and all indictments found for offences committed under this act shall be tried in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, and the District Attorney for whom any conviction for a violation of any of the provisions of this act shall be had, shall not in any case suspend sentence or judgment.

SEC. 32. All provisions of the election laws of the State, including the provisions providing penalties for a violation of any of such provisions not inconsistent with this act, are hereby made applicable to all elections in the City of New-York.

SEC. 33. This act shall take effect immediately.

NEW BUILDINGS.

Growth and Improvement of the City—Building Statement for March, 1870—Progress Since the 1st of January.

The following is a complete list of the plans for new buildings to be erected in this City, and for alterations in old ones, during the month of March of the current year, submitted to the Department for the Survey and Inspection of Buildings, under the charge of Superintendent JAMES M. MAGGREGOR:

NEW BUILDINGS.

Whole number of plans submitted, 109, of which were approved, 78; not approved 7; amended and approved, 12; still pending decision, 12. The total number of buildings embraced in the above plans was 201. They are classified as follows: First-class dwellings, 64; second-class dwellings, 30; third-class dwellings, 82; first-class stores, 4; factories, 15; stables, 13; public buildings, 2.

ALTERATIONS.

The number of plans submitted for alterations in old buildings was 143; of these there were approved 88; not approved, 18; amended and approved, 37; still pending decision, 35. These plans embraced 162 buildings of the following classes: First-class dwellings, 8; second-class dwellings, 66; third-class dwellings, 29; first-class stores, 6; second-class stores, 12; factories, 10; stables, 4; public buildings, 4.

THE MONTHLY STATEMENT.

The following statement shows the total number of new buildings and alterations begun, completed and in progress during the month of March, 1870: New buildings begun, 184; new buildings finished, 136; new buildings in progress, 601; alterations begun, 127; alterations finished, 71; alterations in progress, 242.

UNSAFE BUILDINGS.

During the month of March twenty-seven buildings were reported unsafe. Of this number five have been taken down, six repaired and made safe, and the remainder are undergoing such repairs as to render them secure.

FIRE ESCAPES AND TRAP-DOORS.

The total number of buildings reported during the month of March as requiring fire-escapes was 448, and during this same period 1,376 buildings were provided with fire-escapes. On the 1st of February orders were issued from the Department for Inspectors to examine and report such buildings as had trap-doors which required guards thereto. Of such cases reported the number during February was 418, and in March, 490; total number, 912.

QUARTERLY STATEMENT.

The following is a summary of the City's progress as reported by the Department since Jan. 1, and for the quarter ending March 31, 1870: New buildings begun, 365; new buildings finished, 269; alterations begun, 243; alterations finished, 150; unsafe buildings reported, 69; unsafe buildings repaired, 34; unsafe buildings taken down, 12.

A SURVEY.

The tenement-house No. 80 Mott-street having been reported unsafe, a survey has been ordered, and it will be held today at 3 o'clock. The building is represented to be in a most dangerous condition and requiring immediate attention.

Miscellaneous Telegrams.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., April 5.—The Hazard Block, on Main-street, in this town, was destroyed by fire at 5 o'clock this morning. The loss is $65,000; insured for $15,000.

NEW-ORLEANS, April 5.—At a mass-meeting of citizens, resolutions were adopted expressing satisfaction with the New-York Junta in agreeing to co-operate with Gen. QUESADA, and requesting that all the resources of the Junta be used for the purpose.

MILWAUKEE, April 5.—A fire at Berlin, Wis., today, destroyed the block owned by Messrs. YATES & FOOT, and occupied by Messrs. YATES & FOOT, hardware; L. M. DUNSON, drugs; H. D. MINER, confectionery. Total loss, $35,000; insured for about one-half that amount.

EVANS, Col., April 5.—"Union Colony Number One," H. C. MEARNS, President, and HORACE GREELEY, Treasurer, has this day located in Colorado Territory, on the delta formed by the Cache la Poudre and Platte Rivers, and on the Denver Pacific Railroad, midway between Denver, Col., and Cheyenne, Wyoming Territory. It is expected that the members will begin to arrive about the 20th inst.

CHICAGO, April 5.—There is evidence this evening that there will be a general breaking up of the warehouse monopoly which has controlled the railroads for some years past, and that railroads will hereafter deliver grain to whom consigned. It is understood the Rock Island and Pacific Railroad has today declared its freedom from the monopoly.

BOSTON, April 5.—EDWARD H. SAVAGE has been appointed and confirmed Chief of the Boston Police.

GENERAL TELEGRAMS.

EUROPE.

The Conscription Law in Spain Hissed and Hiss-Hissed—More Financial Aspect of the Labor Strike in France—General News.

MADRID, April 5.—The enforcement of the conscription law commenced yesterday throughout Spain. The proceedings were generally quiet, but disturbances are reported in some places. In Barcelona there was much agitation. The people at the barriers threw up barricades and the troops charged and took them. In the town of Sans, near Barcelona, the rioters made some resistance, and ten men were killed. It is reported today that order has been restored in Barcelona and vicinity....Señor DE ROSERGANAY, Minister of Agriculture, remains in the Cabinet, and the Ministerial crisis is ended.

PARIS, April 5.—Telegrams from La Creusot, of today's date, give a much more favorable account of the troubles there. No collisions between the operators and the troops have occurred. The mines are deserted, and the iron-works partially so. M. SCHNEIDER, one of the largest of the proprietors, has petitioned the Government to withdraw the troops, as their presence tends to keep alive the discontent among the workmen.....The Constitutionnel states that the Plebiscitum will bear on two points not contained in the constitutional acts of 1852, viz.: Ministerial responsibility and the division of legislative power between the Chambers. It adds that it is evident that the Plebiscitum must precede the discussion of the new Constitution, and that a proclamation is expected from the Emperor which will explain the real character of the national vote....The Bordeaux Chamber of Commerce have resolved to impose a duty of half a franc per ton on vessels with cargoes entering or leaving the harbor and a quarter of a franc per ton on those in ballast....MIZRAWIEM, formerly the Russian Governor of Poland, has arrived here.

BERLIN, April 5.—The North German Gazette says that in view of the demands and threats of Denmark with respect to North Schleswig, the restoration of friendship with Prussia is impossible.

The British Parliament—Important Amendment on the Irish Land Bill—Proceedings in the French Corps Legislatif—Exciting Debate.

LONDON, April 5.—The House of Commons, in Committee, continued the consideration of the Irish Land bill. Mr. GLADSTONE offered an amendment giving the tenant compensation for loss of holding, the amount of damages to be assessed by a court. Mr. JOHN WALTER, (Liberal,) member for Berks, objected to the amendment as an advance on the Premier's original demands. Lord JNO. MANNERS opposed and Mr. ORBORNE supported the amendment. Mr. BALL, member for Dublin University, deplored the changes made by the Ministry in the bill, and charged the Government with timidity and vacillation. A general discussion followed, in the course of which Mr. FORTESCUE spoke in favor of the proposed amendment. Mr. GATHORNE HARDY opposed it on the ground that the landlord was made answerable for the tenant's maintenance. The question was taken, and the amendment was carried by a vote of 293 to 189....The House came out of Committee, and Mr. P. A. TAYLOR, member for Leicester, asked leave to introduce a bill providing for the payment of member of Parliament. He demonstrated the antiquity of the practice, and refuted the arguments usually made against it. Mr. GLADSTONE regretted the inability of poor men to serve in the House of Commons. He ardently wished to see representatives of the working classes present. Hence he had approved Mr. FAWCETT's bill to reduce the expenses of Parliamentary elections. Mr. GLADSTONE said it was generally thought that the constituencies, as the better judges, should do the paying when necessary, as in former times. Gratuitous services were the rule in England. The Lords, municipal and parochial authorities, Royal Commissioners and other public servants labored gratuitously. He hoped the motion for leave to introduce the bill would be withdrawn. Mr. TAYLOR declined to withdraw his motion, and leave to bring in the bill was refused by a majority of 127. The House adjourned.

PARIS, April 5.—In the Corps Legislatif today M. JEROME DAVID opened the discussion adjourned from yesterday on the interpellation of M. GREVY on the constituent power. He praised the Emperor's administration of the Government during the past eighteen years. [Exclamations of dissent from the members of the Left. The orator continued, declaring that when the nation had spoken all mean plots would be defeated. He was proud of the fact that he had always supported the personal Government. Here he was interrupted with cries of "Shame!" and "Crime!" from M. PELLETAN, and others. M. PELLETAN, on being called to account for these expressions, repeated and justified them by saying that to praise the coup d'état, by which men now Ministers of France were imprisoned, was a shame and crime. [Applause from the Left.] M. DAVID resumed his speech. He declared that the plebiscitum would be sustained by all who desired to insure to France empire and liberty. M. GAMBETTA opposed the plebiscitum because it left too much power in the hands of the sovereign. Universal suffrage was incompatible with monarchy. The Chambers alone had the right to interrogate the nation. M. OLLIVIER refuted the arguments of M. GAMBETTA; warned the members against the spectre rouge; and conjured the Chambers to side with the Government, which could effect progress without revolution. He declared that the Government would only accept as the order of the day a vote of confidence. Members of the Right Center and MM. JULES FAVRE and THIERS asked for a postponement of the debate until to-morrow. The Chamber refused a postponement by a vote of 173 to 81. The order of the day declaring confidence in the Ministry was then adopted by a vote of 237 to 43. The Chamber then adjourned amid intense agitation.....It is asserted that Deputy MONTAYROUX has quarreled with and challenged the Marquis DE TALHOUET, the Minister of Public Works.....A rumor also prevails that M. BUFFET, Minister of Finance, will resign.....The Count DE STACKELBERG, the Russian Ambassador to France, is seriously ill.

The News-vendors Dinner in London—Speech of Charles Dickens—Decline in French Cable Shares and Breadstuffs—The Peace Bill in Ireland.

LONDON, April 5.—The news-venders held their annual dinner this evening. CHARLES DICKENS presided, and on taking the chair, in response to the vehement cheering with which he was received, said such enthusiasm was unaccountable on any other theory than that all present believed that he had once ridden in the Lord Mayor's coach—a vehicle, however, which he in common with his friends, had only admired from the pavement. His position to-night was less that of a guest than entertainer. Like Falstaff, with a difference large as the fat knight, he was to be less speaker himself than cause of speech in others, or he was like the tobacconist's Highlander, purged with snuff, pointing the wayfarer to receive indoors. There was no better proof of the universality of the newsman's vocation than that no toast would be offered to-night, none might, could, would, or should be offered anywhere, which would not have connection with some one of the topics of human interest reported by him daily. How, asked Mr. DICKENS, but for the newsman, could we have had our table chat here to-night? Let us remember him, therefore, to-night, not merely sentimentally, but substantially. Other speeches and toasts followed, and the company broke up at a late hour.....The French Cable shares, according to the London Times money article, have declined in price recently because of a threatened new competition..... The import

CURRENT NOTES.

Rhode Island election today.

There are said to be 500,000 French Canadians in the United States.

An uncle of RIEL, the Red River leader, was arrested in Montreal on Sunday evening on the charge of being drunk.

The railroad officials at Chattanooga report that 21,000 persons have passed through that place during the past few months, on their way to Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas.

The Democratic candidate for Governor of Oregon is described by California papers as "a moderate," and the candidate for Congress as "a hard-shell of the smooth sort."

A Boston paper says that there are very few railroads in New-England whose receipts are not now from 100 to 800 per cent. in excess of the original estimates.

On the 1st inst. $38,000 were deposited in the Mechanics' Savings Bank, Rochester, a larger amount than was ever before received in a single day.

The Trustees of Oglethorpe University have decided to remove that institution to Atlanta, Ga., and have elected Rev. Dr. WILLS, Pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Macon, its President.

The citizens of Baltimore are to decide by vote, on Tuesday, whether $2,500,000 shall be appropriated to the improvement of Jones' Falls, that the neighboring portions of the city may not be again flooded.

The case of KIMBERLY BROTHERS vs. Gen. BUTLER was passed in the United States Circuit Court, in Baltimore, on Monday, with the understanding that it shall be taken up at an early day, probably next week.

Boston church-goers, the Transcript says, complain that if their ministers keep on using such big words they will be compelled to carry dictionaries as well as prayer-books to "meeting."

Speaking of the threatened Fenian raid from this side of the border, the Montreal Witness remarks that it would be utterly beneath the dignity of Canada to ask the United States for any intervention or protection in the premises.

Here are samples of the claims presented to the Pennsylvania Legislature for losses incurred by the rebel invasion: For black cloth suit of clothes, $25 05; for one ham, 12 pounds, at 15 cents, $2 70; for half-barrel of mackerel, $10 50; for new hat, $3 50. Claims amounting to two or three millions were audited and allowed, but the Legislature refused to appropriate the money.

LEE was serenaded in Savannah, Ga., on Friday evening, or, as the Republican of that city expresses it, "a spontaneous recognition of the presence of this great military chieftain, who is one of the idols of the Southern heart, was manifested" in this way. The band played "The Bonnie Blue Flag." The same persons subsequently serenaded Gen. JOSEPH E. JOHNSTON.

Hon. WILLIAM M. MERRICK, a member of the Maryland House of Delegates, has returned to the State Treasurer $31 worth of postage stamps, and $14 in cash, the latter being the unexpended balance of the amount allowed him for stationery, saying that he believes he is "only entitled to so much stationery and postage stamps as he has actually required for use in the public service."

The St. Paul (Minn.) Press grows enthusiastic over the lease of the St. Paul and Sioux City Railroad to the Superior Railroad Company, characterizing the event as of great importance to the city and the State, as it "clothes with a powerful armament the natural forces which impel the commerce of Minnesota in the direction of its shortest outlet to lake navigation, and is itself but the backbone of the numerous subsidiary connections which will soon ramify in every direction from this great trunk."

The Newark Advertiser estimates that the colored men will throw about 5,000 votes in New-Jersey, and that this will be sufficient in all general elections to give the State to the Republicans. The Seymour electors had 2,683 majority, and Gov. RANDOLPH, in 1868, had 4,557 majority. The Advertiser is also of the opinion that the colored vote will increase the Republican majority in the First Congressional District, and make the Second and Fourth securely Republican, leaving the Third Democratic, and the Fifth a fair field for contest.

Gen. WILLIAM H. MORLEY, of Syracuse, died on Sunday morning at the age of seventy-four years. He was a native of Pittsfield, Mass., but entered into business in Syracuse as early as 1826. Subsequently he resided several years in New-England, and returned to Syracuse about fifteen years ago. For a time he published a monthly paper, devoted more particularly to early recollections of the town and Onondaga County, and for a number of years he has been Librarian of the Supreme Court Fifth District Library, filling the duties most satisfactorily.

The Scranton (Penn.) Republican sees no reason to apprehend that the coal miners' strike will extend beyond the Schuylkill region. The mines in the Lehigh and Wyoming regions, it says, are actively at work, and the miners have no cause of grievance in regard to wages, while around Scranton the situation of affairs is still better, the thousands of workmen employed by the three large mining and transportation companies never having been better paid for their labor than they are today. The suspension in the Schuylkill region has been caused by the inability of the operators there to comply with the demands of the workmen, and the refusal of the workmen to accept the prices offered by the operators.

Rev. NATHANIEL LANGDON FROTHINGHAM, D. D., who died in Boston on Monday morning, had been an invalid for several years. The Traveller says: "He was well-known as a man possessing a high order of intellectual gifts, and although his was an uneventful life, yet thirty-five years of faithful services had secured for him great respect as a Christian and a scholar. He was born in Boston in 1793, graduated at Harvard College in 1811, was ordained pastor of the First Church in 1815, and resigned his charge on account of ill-health in 1850. Dr. FROTHINGHAM published several volumes of poetry and prose. He married a daughter of the late PETER C. BROOKS, and among the children who survive him is Rev. O. B. FROTHINGHAM, of New-York."

Western Homes for Homeless Boys.

Considering how many boys there are in the City, homeless, friendless, unemployed and exposed to the numerous temptations of the street, it is not strange that there should frequently occur startling instances of juvenile criminality. The efforts that are being made by our benevolent agencies to improve the condition of these youths, are not only fraught with blessings to the boys themselves but cannot fail to have a salutary effect upon the City at large. Between seventy and eighty of these young waifs left the City yesterday, in charge of Mr. J. P. BEACE, of the Children's Aid Society, to be provided with homes and employment in the West. Mr. BEACE is one of the most successful of the Society's Western agents. Within the last six weeks he has found homes and employment for 400 homeless boys and girls. Mr. BEACE brings most encouraging reports from the West, stating that he has generally found the demand for help much greater than he could supply, and that in many cases he obtains good wages for his boys. He advises all unemployed young men and women to emigrate to farms in the West.

Vessel-Owners' and Captains' Co-operative Association.

The Vessel-owners' and Captains' Co-operative Association of this City, held their regular monthly meeting at the Merchants' Exchange, Nos. 60 and 62 Pine-street, yesterday afternoon, Mr. WILLIAM W. BAKER presiding. Mr. WM. H. KENNEL made a report on behalf of a Committee that had been sent to Washington, to urge the passage of a bill by Congress abolishing compulsory pilotage at this port. He stated that the mission was well received, especially by members of the House of Representatives; that similar committees from the Vessel-owners' and Captains' Associations of Baltimore and Philadelphia had been at Washington, and that the prospects for the passage of the bill desired were favorable.

Mr. EDWIN R. KIRK stated that the bill abolishing compulsory pilotage in the waters of New-Jersey, including Sandy Hook, had passed both Houses of the Legislature of that State, and was waiting for the signature of the Governor.

Mr. GEO. M. LAGRAVE, having made a report about an intended Vessel-owners' and Captains' Association in Maine, the Secretary was directed to correspond with Mr. JAMES [illegible], of Calais, Me., with a view to organizing a similar organization there. The meeting then adjourned.

PRESIDENT LINCOLN.

The Selection of his Cabinet for his Second Term—A Character from Theodore Weed's Autobiography.

From Appletons' Journal, April 15.

In the winter of 1864, I received a note from President LINCOLN, asking me to come to Washington. Immediately after my arrival I called at the White House, and although early several persons were waiting to see the President. Mr. LINCOLN requested me to call at an hour indicated, when I found him alone. He commenced the conversation by saying: "You will remember that after the result of the late Presidential election was known I told you that I expected to have more influence with the President now that he had got a new lease. You and your friends thought that they were severely tried during my first four years. I did not say much about it then, but intended, if circumstances were favorable to even up the account. I shall have Mr. FESSENDEN's resignation of the Treasury Department on Monday. Now, if you had the vacancy to fill whose name would you send to the Senate?"

I replied that, although wholly unprepared for such a question, yet I was not unprepared with a name that I would suggest for his consideration. I then mentioned Gov. MORGAN as, in my judgment, a suitable man for the place, provided it would answer to give the two leading places in his Cabinet to the State of New-York.

"I anticipated this name," said Mr. LINCOLN; "and even if I had not intended to consult your wishes, I should have felt quite safe in trusting the matter to your judgment. I can afford to give Gov. MORGAN the Treasury, even though Mr. SEWARD has the State Department; because the Governor can be confirmed, and the people will sustain the appointment. But," he added, "this could not be done if a word or a whisper of it gets out. Can you and I keep the secret?" He then inquired if there was any doubt of Gov. MORGAN's acceptance. I told him I thought not; that he had been a capable and successful merchant; that he had shown great executive and financial ability as Governor of our State; and that I could not doubt of his acceptance of a department in which he could render much greater service to his country. And, after some further conversation, Mr. LINCOLN allowed me to suggest—in the strictest confidence, and in general terms—to Gov. MORGAN that a contingency might happen, in which he would be called to the discharge of other duties.

On the way to the cars I stopped at Gov. MORGAN's house; and, after very earnest injunctions of secrecy, made the suggestion, in terms so vague and general, as to leave the Governor wholly in the dark as to the nature of the duties referred to, and as to my authority to make the suggestion.

It was understood between Mr. LINCOLN and myself that I should hasten home; and, without disclosing or intimating the possibility of a vacancy in the United States Senate, do whatever might be done, with the knowledge I possessed, to give the proper direction to the question of filling Gov. MORGAN's place in the Senate.

On my arrival at Albany, I had not a little curious conversation with Gov. FENTON, without whose co-operation it would have been impossible to move effectually. I found that the gentlemen to ward whom attention would naturally be drawn for such a position, resided in the western part of the State. I suggested Lieut.-Gov. SHELDEN, or Judge J. C. SMITH, as available; but I soon discovered that the Governor, like some of his predecessors, had aspirations for the United States Senate himself, and that if the opportunity should arrive. We then talked with less restraint of candidates in other portions of the State; and I left him with the belief that, should it become necessary to act, we could agree upon a suitable candidate. I now, however, with a better knowledge of his tactics, am confident that Gov. FENTON would accepted the Treasury Department, Gov. FENTON would have been a candidate for the vacancy.

When the time came for Mr. LINCOLN to supply the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Mr. FESSENDEN, he took the Senate and the country by surprise in the nomination of Gov. MORGAN. He—who entirely had I failed to prepare him for the event—was quite as much surprised as his colleagues. Gov. MORGAN, as soon as he could leave his seat, went over to the White House, and informed the President that he must decline the appointment. He consented, however, to leave the matter over two or three days, giving both himself and the President time for consideration. I returned immediately to Washington, and after a long interview with Gov. MORGAN, was constrained to report his persistent declination to the President. I failed, however, as I then and now believe, to ascertain what were Gov. MORGAN's real reasons for refusing the Treasury Department. Upon reporting that failure to Mr. LINCOLN, he said: "That is very awkward, but we must look elsewhere for a Secretary. Who is your next man?" I replied that I was too much mortified by this miscfire to say again. Mr. LINCOLN said: "I am disappointed, for I thought Gov. MORGAN would be willing to help us 'run the machine;' but I had two other men in my mind. What do you say to Mr. MCCULLOCH or Mr. HOOPER?" I replied that I had a high appreciation of the character and services of both gentlemen; but that I was personally almost unknown to them; that Mr. MCCULLOCH had been brought to Washington by Secretary CHASE, and might be fairly supposed to have imbibed his views and impressions; and that I had no reason to believe that Mr. HOOPER sympathized with Gov. SEWARD or his friends. Mr. LINCOLN laughingly remarked that he supposed I could not forget how Massachusetts disappointed me at Chicago; adding, it was hard for Gov. SEWARD to be crowded out by a new man. And then he renewed his request for me to name a man. I then said: "Why not call Mr. ANASO BURLINGAME?" "I have thought of that too," said Mr. LINCOLN; "but will it do to have so long an interregnum?" I remarked that I thought Mr. CHANDLER, the Assistant-Secretary, capable and trustworthy. "True," said Mr. LINCOLN, "we know that here; but will it do to let the Finance Department, on which so much depends, be run by deputy?" I then spoke of Senator FOSTER. "An excellent man," said Mr. LINCOLN, "and one whom I would readily appoint, if Connecticut were large enough to be entitled to two members of the Cabinet." I finally suggested Mr. HAMLIN. "I WILLS," said Mr. LINCOLN, "but the Senate on the brain; and nothing more or less will confirm him." And then I gave it up; and Mr. LINCOLN said: "Let us fall back on Mr. MCCULLOCH, who now seems most available;" adding, that he would hold the question open for two or three days, giving me time to confer as freely and frequently as I desired with that gentleman.

I found myself not a little embarrassed on my way, one Sunday morning, to the residence of Mr. MCCULLOCH. The idea of establishing relations with that gentleman, "on compulsion," seemed like seeking knowledge under difficulties. These difficulties, however, disappeared by the time I had delivered our conversation proceeded. There were two elements in the character of Mr. MCCULLOCH on which, per se, I was disposed to rely. He had Scotch blood in his veins, and had been in politics a Whig.

This may be a proper occasion to say that, during my whole political life, in all similar conversations in reference to important political interests, I never asked or intimated a desire to receive, directly or indirectly, any thing in the shape of a pledge or a promise; nor have I ever, in reference to such things, regarded a man from whom such pledges or promises were required or who was capable of giving them, worthy of confidence or respect. After Mr. LINCOLN's first election as President he invited me to Springfield, where I passed two days with him in free consultation about the great questions upon which he would be called to act. Mr. LINCOLN was frank and unrestrained, evidently inviting corresponding frankness and freedom on my part. His Cabinet, his inaugural, his policy, &c., &c., were fully discussed; and when I was about to take my leave, Mr. LINCOLN inquired playfully, if I hadn't forgotten something; adding, after a moment's pause, "You have not asked for any offices." I replied that when the proper time arrived I should probably, like hosts of other friends, ask for such favors. "But," said Mr. LINCOLN, "you have the reputation of taking time by the forelock." I was wrecked to know my guarded response; and the joke of the matter is, that those who gave the warning are after offices themselves, while you have avoided the subject."

But, going back to Mr. MCCULLOCH—my interviews with that gentleman, if protracted, were made so by his intelligent, right-minded and straightforward expression of views and opinions. If, in going to Mr. MCCULLOCH, I had something of the feeling of "Toots" in calling on "Capt. Cuttle" for the "favor of his friendship," I left him with a strong feeling of regard and confidence, and so reported to Mr. LINCOLN, who immediately sent his name to the Senate—a step which neither Mr. LINCOLN nor the people have had any occasion to regret. On the contrary, Mr. MCCULLOCH proved himself an enlightened, independent, and upright Secretary of the Treasury. To the friends whom I represented he was just and faithful. To myself, who was frequently compelled to occupy his time and attention, he was uniformly courteous and patient—always granting what was proper and in his power to grant—and never refusing without a good reason and in a friendly spirit. All my recollections of Mr. MCCULLOCH in his Department—the only place, I am sorry to say, that I ever met him—are pleasant ones.—Appletons' Journal.

Alleged Smuggling on the Frontier.

Gen. CURTIS, Special Agent of the Treasury Department for the Northern District of New-York, made a complaint against WILLIAM H. MCCREMS before Commissioner OSBORN yesterday, for having, it was alleged, smuggled a large quantity of salmon into the United States from Canada about the [illegible] Mr. MCCREMS [illegible] of Canada, and that [illegible] Treasury [illegible] Mr. MCCREMS [illegible] friends on the frontier. He said that he could prove his entire innocence of the charge against him. He was released in the custody of Deputy Marshal FREEDMAN, and will be brought up for examination this morning.

Transportation Facilities to and from the Great West.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The Financial Chronicle of March 26 says:

"So heavy are the transportation charges now levied on the trade that at the present time hundreds of millions, are produced, and tens of hundreds of millions, are yet hidden in the West for the reason that it would cost more to move it to the seaboard than it would bring when it reached there. The fact, and the consequent blessed element of peace, which it implies, are, of course, known to everybody; but it is so, that our Western trade, which is a great source of wealth to the country, is now in a great measure crippled by the high rates of our foreign trade. Without cheaper transportation, however, we cannot compete with Russia and other grain producing countries in the foreign markets; but with free navigation from Duluth, via the Welland Canal and Fox Rivers, the lakes and the Erie Canal, to the seaboard at the point, the agricultural resources of the country would be more fully and profitably developed, the volume of our export trade largely increased, and the prosperity of our State permanently assured."

The want of increased facilities for transportation is rapidly becoming the one great anxiety of the Western States. The newspapers are full of it, and the demand for greater freedom of trade in this particular is forcing its way from the very heart of the young giant, and will have no denial. New-York, of all cities on the continent, should be the first to sympathize with, and put its energies to work to meet this great want. With the rapid increase in number of railroads in the last few years, opening up for settlement and commerce new Territories larger than many European States, and tributary to the lakes, with the certain completion of another and more northern line to the Pacific, with an opportunity of building up a commerce in the next few years of ten times its present magnitude, New-Yorkers will indeed be blind, untrue to themselves and unworthy children of DE WITT CLINTON, if they refuse to aid all and every practical effort to give lungs and arteries to this new and present Western life. No one scheme is sufficient. All that can be done in ten years is wanted now. Long and continuous lines of cheap freight railroads; the immediate enlargement of our own great canal; the spanning of Niagara by a ship canal on the American shore; another ship canal wedding the Hudson to the St. Lawrence; the enlargement of the St. Mary's Canal and of the connecting lines of Wisconsin and Iowa. River improvements, could all be profitably used today. Steamers running direct from the Mississippi across Illinois to the docks of Chicago, and propellers from thence and from Duluth will then be lying at our wharves.

A selfish narrow policy which limits itself to any one of these schemes, which for petty personal reasons or jealousies, while siding one does all in its power to crush out the others, is unworthy of the age and of our great future. There is more than work enough for all, and if properly encouraged all will pay handsome returns to the enterprises, where, as long as commerce seeks great centers the tide of Atlantic transportation must come. The great monetary center of the world, the Amsterdam and London of the future, need not fear the competition of Montreal, buried for so large a part of the year in ice or fogs. Direct trade, leaving on no one a staff as the wild, foggy and tempestuous mouth of the St. Lawrence, with long delays in passing up the stream and an embargo for seven months of the twelve, is a horror which should never give the New-York merchant or banker a moment's fear. New-Orleans, with its terrible climate and increasing cost of river transportation, has but little better opportunity of rivaling its great Atlantic competitor; and with the annual exodus of Bostonians to our midst and the removal of their ocean lines, we are more and more convinced that the true element for the universal live Yankee is New-York. Providence has made every line from the West and North point to us. If we but help ourselves, He will help us to realize a future of usefulness and grandeur which will excel the dreams of our most sanguine citizens.

The Financial Chronicle of March 26 says:

"Lakes and canals are the only sure protection against railroad extortion. The moment an unbroken waterway from the Upper Mississippi to the water would develop a new channel for the movement of Western produce with which the whole railroad system would be unable to compete, and would tend to secure this is wholly within our power. The opening of such a route would attract the great bulk of the grain trade of the North-west but also its natural channel, and, while diminishing the relative cost of transportation, effectually protect the consumer and producer against the extortions practiced by the warehouse and railway monopolies now controlling this most important branch of our internal commerce."

Mr. HATCH, of Buffalo, in his late address before the Produce Exchange, says:

"The source of prosperity in foreign commerce is domestic commerce. The commerce which floats upon your Lakes Ontario, Erie, Superior, Huron and Michigan, and upon the canals, is the commerce which is borne in ships from the seaports of this country to the Old World. The inland commerce of the United States is about seven times as great as the commerce between the United States and foreign ports. The great American problem of the day is its transit line from the West to the seaboard, and upon its wise solution depends the growth of your Atlantic seaboard, and the prosperity, for years to come, and the commercial supremacy of your State and City."

The opening of more enlarged communication between Lakes Erie and Ontario is looked to as an important part of the grand scheme for relief in which so many others blend.

The Welland Canal, as it now exists only permits the passage of vessels not exceeding 600 tons burden, drawing nine feet of water; and is the only effort that has been made to prevent the localizing of the great waters of Ontario. The number of years that would elapse and the great cost of a Niagara Ship Canal on the American shore, may be inferred from the long procrastination which overshadows our Legislature and has for so many years shut off all chance of making our Erie Canal what it should be, and also prevented the constructing of other most important water ways, led to the questions being asked by many interested in the subject, what can be done on the Canada shore? How rapidly can facilities be there acquired? These questions are most satisfactorily answered by the report of the most distinguished engineer of Canada, made to the House of Commons at the expense and solicitations of numerous American and Canadian citizens who have been pressing upon the Government at Ottawa this important need. He shows that without disturbing the present use of the canal, a lateral cut from the excellent harbor of Niagara to Thorold, and the deepening of the canal to Port Colbourne can be finished within two years for less than $6,000,000, so as to allow of vessels 350 feet long, drawing 12 feet, and carrying 2,000 tons, to unload at the docks of Oswego. The harbor of Niagara is superior in all points to Port Dalhousie, and was originally designed for the outlet, while only one lift would be necessary. There will be necessary to overcome the difference in level. From Oswego, a short canal carries to the Hudson, and three great lines of railway stand waiting to complete the competition with all the rail lines, thus furnishing a short route to the City. This important improvement will do very much to solve the difficulties in the movement of produce, will bring the coppes and iron ores of the lakes much the nearer to our own ores and coal; will permit propellers of two thousand tons to shorten the time so greatly between Chicago and Duluth and our City as to make it cost cheaper freight to the former than it does now almost pay for the improvement each year. The damage occurring from detention in the Welland Canal in its present inefficient state was nearly three hundred thousand dollars last year, and it is now utterly inadequate to do the business which presses upon it, to say nothing of the great needs of the future. Such an enterprise as that of this enlargement appeals so strongly to the great public of our State and City, appealing to the rich as affording the promise of cheaper labor and increasing opportunities for investment of capital, and to the poor by its assurance of cheap bread, to the great necessity, and means of life and largely the life of the State, that it cannot want strong friends to make it soon a great reality. Efforts are now being made by its friends in this City to interest our people in its behalf, and signatures of some hundreds of our most influential men are following those from Chicago, Cleveland, Toledo, Detroit and elsewhere to Ottawa, to show the interest we Americans have in every effort, though made by a sister country, to enlarge the field of our commerce and the opening up of a just market to our Western citizens. It needs encouragement, and should be made manifest, and, if it be merely come. The New-York Chamber of Commerce, awake to the importance of the enterprise, passed at its last monthly meeting the following excellent resolutions:

Whereas, This Chamber has heard with pleasure that the people of Canada are making efforts to secure at an early day such enlargement of the Welland Canal as will give a uniform depth of twelve feet, with locks 300 feet in length, thus providing for the passage of vessels of a large tonnage, and facilitating the transportation of grain from the West and the traffic between Lake Erie and Ontario, and thus benefit the commerce of our State and City; therefore,

Resolved, That this Chamber express their gratification at the prospect of the enlargement of the Welland Canal, and will do all they can to secure for it the encouragement of our citizens. D.

The Stevens Institute.

It is well known that the late EDWIN A. STEVENS, of New-Jersey, bequeathed a large sum for the establishment of an institution of learning, and that a handsome and massive edifice for the purpose is in progress of [illegible]. Prof. HENRY MORTON, of Philadelphia, the President elect of the new institute, and Rev. R. WALB, director of the Martha Institute, will deliver addresses to-morrow evening in the Hall of the latter. These gentlemen propose that to-morrow afternoon, at 4 o'clock, for the [illegible] institutions, the Martha being intended as a preparatory school for the Stevens Institute. Prof. MORTON will also give his views of technical education generally. The occasion is one of great interest in view of the important influence upon education of the new institution.

THE MARYLAND TRIAL.

SECOND DAY.

Two Hundred Jurymen Called, but Only Three Jurors Obtained—Discussion Between Counsel—Some Instruction of the Prisoner.

An immense crowd awaited the opening of the door of the Criminal Court-room, yesterday morning, and as soon as they were thrown open the room was speedily filled with spectators. Mr. MCFARLAND was present, accompanied by his little son, as on yesterday, and preserved a calm and collected demeanor during the whole of the day's proceedings. Messrs. GRAHAM, GERRY and SPENCER, prisoner's counsel, were present, as also were District-Attorney GARVIN, his assistant, Mr. PHILLOWS, and Judge DAVIS, associated with them for the prosecution. Judge HEDFORD, part of the time, occupied a seat on the bench beside Recorder HACKETT, the presiding Judge. Shortly after 11 o'clock the list of five jurors accepted on Monday was called, and the proceedings were begun. The work of the day did nothing more than add three to the list of jurors impaneled.

The following is the result of the examination as the list of those summoned to attend as jurors was called, most of those examined having formed a positive opinion:

Lewis J. Mulford, Fifteenth Ward, jeweler, had formed an opinion; excused. Grenville Blake, Ninetieth Ward, wire-maker; excused. Herman M. Cohen, Twenty-first Ward, merchant; had an opinion which evidence could not remove. Patrick McKenna, Eighth Ward, liquors; had no opinion in the matter, and no scruples against capital punishment. This juror was accepted by Mr. GRAHAM, but challenged peremptorily by the prosecution, and told to stand aside. Alfred Der Woods, Twentieth Ward, soap-dealer; excused. Simon Hackeys, Ninetieth Ward, baker; excused. Elisha H. Allen, Jr., Eighteenth Ward, jeweler; excused. Edward Oothout, Fifteenth Ward, ironmonger; excused. Conrad Metzgen, Third Ward, piano; excused. The gentleman testified, on examination, that he knew very little about the case.

Mr. Graham—He must belong to Mr. Frothingham's Church; they never have any opinions there.

The District-Attorney—I can't see the utility of that remark.

Recorder Hackett—It is only a little pleasantry, by the way.

The juror was excused.

Robert T. Anderson, Ninth Ward, broker, excused. Oliver S. Levy, First Ward, merchant; had an opinion medibly fixed; excused. James J. Quinn, Ninth Ward, confectioner; excused. Samuel Jackson, Second Ward, merchant, excused.

James Bailes, Twenty-second Ward, clothier; had a vague opinion as to the homicide, not a fixed one; would not require evidence to remove it; had no scruples as to awarding the death penalty for murder; was perfectly fitted to give an impartial verdict in accordance with the evidence should he be sworn as a juror; read the account of the homicide in the Times; is a Presbyterian; attends the Eighty-fourth-street Presbyterian Church; don't know Mr. Oliver Johnson; don't read the Independent, nor know Mr. Theodore Tilton; none of his family attend Mr. Beecher's Church. Challenged peremptorily by the defense and excused.

Daniel Oakey, Eighteenth Ward, importer; had formed no opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused; read little in the newspapers except the political articles and the prices current; read the Times and Tribune; remembered seeing an article in one of them disparaging Rev. Dr. Frothingham's part in the marriage ceremony; did not fully coincide with its sentiments; family attend Rev. Dr. Bellows' (Unitarian) church, where deponent goes occasionally. Challenged peremptorily by the defense, and excused.

Gabriel Tapley, Ninetieth Ward, wholesale liquor-dealer, 180 Delamcy-street, had not formed a positive opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused; read the detailed accounts of the homicide at the time of its occurrence, but they left no permanent impression on his mind either for or against the prisoner; had no conscientious scruples as to awarding the death penalty for murder; is married and has a family. Both sides consenting this gentleman was accepted, and sworn as the sixth juror.

The following were excused because of having formed a positive opinion in the matter: Henry F. Ferguson, Twenty-first Ward, grocer; James George Hinckes, Seventh Ward, grocer; George A. Higgins, Seventh Ward, painter; Jacob Gael, Ward H. Wakefield, Ninetieth Ward, grocer; Henry F. Walke, Sixteenth Ward, confectioner; James W. Kendall, Eighteenth Ward, nettings; John H. Buhlmeister, Ninth Ward, upholsterer; Charles Ph. Wolf, Seventeenth Ward; Edward Chamberlain, Twenty-first Ward, gentleman; James A. White, Seventeenth Ward, merchant, testified that his opinion was such that it would be improper for him to sit on the jury.

Franklin H. Carter, Twenty-first Ward, residing at No. 7 Madison-avenue, had no doubts as to the guilt of the prisoner, or as to who fired the shot; or as to who shot him; if that was an opinion he had one; had said the prisoner was justified in his act, and was of the same impression now. Excused.

Thomas Scott, commission merchant, No. 17 South William-street, had entertained an impression from the reading of the homicide, from accounts of it published in the newspapers; it was not fixed or of such a character as would be likely to warp his judgment as a juror; if placed on the jury he should be governed altogether by the evidence adduced.

Question by Mr. Graham—Have you read the extremely profound and vicarious language indulged in at what was called the marriage service at the Astor-house? Answer—I cannot say that I did; I do not recollect having done so.

Both sides consented to accept Mr. Scott, and he was sworn as juror No. 7.

David H. Schiffer, Fifth Ward, paper-dealer; read an account of the homicide in the Times; could not say whether or not it was justifiable until he heard the evidence. His family attend the Methodist Church. Challenged peremptorily by the defense and excused.

Henry O. Wentworth, No. 26 Forsyth-street, had formed an opinion based on the newspaper reports; but if called to serve as a juror, would be governed entirely by the evidence.

Question by Mr. Graham—Is that opinion adverse to the prisoner?

The District-Attorney—That won't do; it is going too far.

Mr. Graham—Yes, it will do; we'll see whether it is going too far or not.

Recorder Hackett—I think the question is admissible at this particular stage of the proceedings.

Mr. Wentworth answered that the opinion he had formed, if it might be called one, was not adverse to the prisoner, that if anything it was in his favor; but that, should he be placed on the jury, he would determine his verdict strictly in accordance with the evidence.

The question as to the competency of this gentleman to serve as a juror was then sent to the triers to determine.

Mr. Graham insisted that Mr. Wentworth should be admitted as a juror; his candor and equanimity were commendable. If he were not competent to sit as a juror in this case, it would be very difficult, if not impossible, to get a jury at all. The ghost-like, transitory opinions which in the most calm and lucid moments fit large men's brains seem to count for nothing. The law demands something more; it demands that there be some fixed opinion which must be disturbed before the evidence can have effect on the juror's mind. And no man must be deprived of sitting in the jury-box and exercising the highest prerogatives of a citizen, because he has some floating notions as to the justification of the act charged upon the accused.

Some discussion here arose between counsel as to which side had the closing of this argument, Mr. Graham contending that the challenge for principal cause was his, and that he had a right to ask the triers to override it.

Judge Davis contended that the juror had bias, by plainly expressing himself in favor of the prisoner.

Mr. Graham, in reply, said that the juror's answer showed simply that he entertained the legal presumption that the prisoner was innocent until proved to be guilty—nothing more. He said, also, that in the determination of this case counsel for the defense really represented the people, although the prosecution were nominally charged with that duty; that with the fall of this defense would fall the secured protection of the highest right and prerogative of men—highest because it comes from the highest source of power, from Heaven itself.

The triers having been charged by Recorder Hackett, returned a verdict that the juror was not indifferent, and he was thereupon told to stand aside.

Thomas W. Whitemore, Fourth Ward, mirrors, had formed and expressed a decided opinion in relation to the homicide. He was excused.

William Welch, Eighth-avenue, near Twenty-second-st., dry goods merchant, had read of the homicide, but had not formed or expressed an opinion; as to the prisoner's culpability in it; is a married man, a Presbyterian in religious belief, and attends Rev. Dr. NORTHROP's church. He was accepted by both sides and sworn as juror No. 8.

William Stengl, Horatio Wilter, Ninth Ward, importer; John H. Wright, Twenty-first Ward, insurance agent; Wm. T. Dalton, Twentieth Ward, mining, business, were excused, having formed and expressed opinions as to the guilt or innocence of the accused.

Clarence Hubbard, Seventeenth Ward, clothier, had neither formed or expressed an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the prisoner; is married; attends the Baptist Church; has no friend who, so his knowledge, attends either Mr. Beecher's or Mr. Frothingham's church. Question by Mr. Graham—Have you any such respect for either of those individuals as will lead you to excuse them for the sake of either of them, if it needed in this case?

Recorder Hackett—Don't answer that question; it is improper.

Mr. Graham suggested that it would have well for the Court to stop the defense in this regard when the prosecution made objection. The defense intended to prove a conspiracy in this case to hang the defendant by witnesses who, it is said, that this conspiracy was influenced and motivated by those who should have been friends of such witnesses. They intended to show that there was a plot in this whole affair—that it was contrived at by persons who should have been the friends of the accused, respectable citizens. They would show that the friends of the accused had no cause whatever for leaving him; that she was alienated from him by acts of the most base character on the part of [illegible]

IMPORTANT DECISIONS AFFECTING PRIORITY OF CLAIMS IN ADMIRALTY.

In the matter of the Petitions of Nelson D. White, of John Slater and of others, vs. The Steamboat City of Norwich, &c., the following opinion was given yesterday:

BENEDICT, J.—The applications which have been made in behalf of the several petitioners, who are now before the Court upon these petitions, will be granted, so far as to permit them to file petitions in behalf of and for the prosecution of their respective demands against the steamer City of Norwich for adjudication and payment out of the proceeds of the stipulated or for value given in the discharge of the vessel from custody. The vessel being in existence and within the jurisdiction of the Court, I see no objection to proceeding against her by libel, as has been done in some of the cases already presented to the Court; proceeding against the vessel being of course, followed by the appearance of the claimants and the entry of an order declaring the libelants entitled to participation in the distribution of the procee

The Railway Stocks were not very active, but prices, on the business of Monday, were rather higher than yesterday throughout the New-York and Western lines. There was the usual favorite for the speculative operation, and no particular object of attack by the opposite party. Some gossip is included against the Lake Shore Stock in regard to a threat in the Pennsylvania Legislature to deal with the old charter of the Cleveland and Erie section within that Commonwealth. No particulars are given, while on the other hand it is claimed by the Pennsylvania Directors, (three in number,) of the Consolidated Lake Shore Company, that every requirement of the charter to the Cleveland and Erie section has been scrupulously observed. There is an increasing interest manifested at the Stock Board in the Stock, as well as the Bonds of the St. Louis and Iron Mountain Road. The stock sold today at 40¾ ₱ cent.

After the late Boards the following quotations were made as compared with Monday night:

The wonderful but not wholly unlooked for changes wrought by the Pacific Railway in the course of trade between the Atlantic and Pacific coast and the Orient have not seriously affected the Stock and prospects of the Pacific Mail corporation, but they touch very nearly, if not vitally, the Panama Company, whose shares have fallen from 320 ₱ cent below 140 ₱ cent., and whose Dividends are reduced from 24 ₱ cent. ₱ annum in Gold to 16 ₱ cent. in Currency. How long this reduced rate is to be maintained will depend more on the peculiar trade, which of right belongs to the Isthmus route, on the Pacific side with the Central American States and the South-west coast than upon the hope or prospect of recovering the lost traffic with San Francisco, China, &c.

In our long experience in this column of the TIMES, which dates from the early progress of the Panama Road, we have recorded the most astonishing fluctuations in the stock. In 1852 it was predicted that the completion of the work would make the Stock worth more than 100 ₱ cent. Two years thereafter, in 1854, one or more of its leading promoters were compelled to sell out at 60 or 65 ₱ cent. The stock subsequently advanced to all and more than its predicted price of 100 ₱ cent. In 1858 on the Frost difficulty with England it fell to 20@25 ₱ cent. Since then it reached 320 ₱ cent. And now, since the completion of the Pacific Road it has steadily fallen from 220 down to 140 ₱ cent. In the meantime a renewal of the charter from the New-Granadian Government, which by the original concession was to terminate in twenty years after the completion of the work, has been obtained for ninety-nine years, perpetuating a clause in the contract that if the Darien Ship Canal should be undertaken and successfully prosecuted, the Panama Company would be entitled to ample compensation for their exclusive privileges of transit across the Isthmus. The end of this remarkable history is yet to be written. Yesterday the twentieth or twenty-first annual election of the Company was held, and at the head of the ticket is the name of Mr. WILLIAM H. ASPINWALL, one of the most conspicuous and enterprising promoters—if not the pioneer—of the enterprise twenty years ago.

The Secretary of the Treasury has very properly extended the privilege to the Bankers dealing in California Bullion of loaning their Gold here in the Treasury, without coinage, in exchange for Gold Certificates, less the half ₱ cent. chargeable for coinage if the bars should not be withdrawn on proper notice.

The week's exports hence of Domestic Produce have been to the currency value of $2,100,000.

A correspondent, dating from Selma, Ala., March 28, writes as follows of the Alabama Railroads: I have been held in check here for some days by a severe cold, contracted on my return hither, which will account for your not hearing from me at this point, instead of from New-Orleans, as I contended when positive direction was given me to do so. I shall be at my post in New-York, I do not expect, however, till I can manage to be in opportunity of some busy spring operations which are commencing to assume shape in this section of country, and the moral, social and political condition of the people, of which I was before comparatively ignorant.

Alabama, like the mass of her sister States, purified by the baptism of fire and blood that has passed through, and relieved from the incubus and blighting effects of the peculiar institution, in fact being regenerated, and is preparing herself for the prominent position among the States to which her almost unsurpassed mineral and agricultural resources entitle her.

An important, if not the chief element in this reconstruction is the system of railroads she has inaugurated. Like a pillar of a cloud by day and the pillar of fire by night, which led the children of Israel out of old and out of the land of bondage, so the iron horse is leading the way for the disenthralled South, scattering with its fiery breath the seeds of ignorance and prejudice, and crushing out with remorseless, but benignant tread, the immoralities and barbarisms of the past. But lest my valuable journal, forming my Bible horse, and call your attention to one of the prominent assets in this beneficent work. This place, you will recollect, suffered terribly during the rebellion, from the raids of the Northern forces, particularly the cavalry under WILSON. A vast amount of private and public property was destroyed, besides with the old State Railroad and Tuscumbia, River Railroad, then in operation 18 miles to Jacksonville, with all its depots, machine-shops and rolling stock.

Upon the ruins of this road the present one, under the title of "Selma, Rome and Dalton," has been built, extending, as far as completed, from Selma to Rome, about five hundred miles. Whence a further extension of forty miles to Dalton, Ga., is now in process of construction, to be finished by May or June. This road passes through, for its entire length, the most populous and richest agricultural and mineral sections; has the inside track, and, with its tributaries and the connecting links with Pensacola, Mobile and New-Orleans, now being completed under the efficient supervision of R. G. HARDY, so long and favorably known as railroad manager, which, when completed, will insure the shortest and most direct route to those places—it must be apparent, to the whole trade of Alabama, over all other competing lines.

The road has been built solely by the aid of Northern capital, and is in every respect a first-class road, complete in all its appointments.

A significant feature in its progress is that it is so little known, and that unlike similar enterprises, none of its securities have ever been put upon the market in this country nor in Europe, nor have any measures been taken through the public journals to bring it into general notice, to account for which we can only surmise that its owners, satisfied with their investment, actuated equally by the maxim of "good wine needs no bush," and confident of the brilliant future which awaits them, have been content to bide their time, feeling well assured that its superior claims to favor will, in the natural progress of events, be timely appreciated.

While upon the subject of railroads, let me caution your readers not to be carried away by a too sanguine faith in such enterprises, nor to clutch at every crude fusion in the shape of a Southern railroad which is held out to them.

Our Circulation.

The subscription list and the daily sales of the TIMES are now greater than at any period within the last twelve months, and are rapidly increasing. The fact is mentioned for the information of friends and in reply to the misstatements of enemies.

☞ Advertisements for the WEEKLY TIMES must be handed in before 10 o'clock this evening.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

The new conscription in Spain meets with resistance. At Barcelona, barricades were thrown up and the troops were obliged to charge on them in order to dislodge the rioters. At Lans, near Barcelona, ten men were killed. Late dispatches report quiet restored. The Ministerial crisis is said to be ended....The accounts from the Le Creusot strike are more favorable to a peaceful solution of the difficulties. M. SCHNEIDER, one of the largest proprietors, has petitioned the Government for a withdrawal of the troops, as their presence tends to augment the disturbances.... One-half franc per ton has been imposed on vessels with cargoes entering or leaving Bordeaux Harbor, by the Chamber of Commerce of that city....The Irish Waterford Mail, in announcing the passage of the Peace bill, appears in mourning for the "death of liberty of the Press."....At the annual dinner of the news venders, held in London last evening, CHARLES DICKENS presided and made a speech....The North German Gazette says that the threats and demands of Denmark in regard to North Schleswig render a restoration of friendship with Prussia impossible.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, yesterday, during the morning hour, considerable discussion ensued upon a resolution—which was finally referred—offered by Mr. CAMERON, providing for a testimonial to the first volunteers of Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, as the first to respond to the call for troops at the beginning of the war. An adverse report was received on the bill requiring the appointment by the President and confirmation by the Senate of Supervisors of Internal Revenue. The House joint resolution in reference to the Oneida disaster, and directing an inquiry, was passed. Early in the day the Georgia debate was resumed, Mr. SUMNER making a long argument in opposition to the Bingham amendment. He was followed by Mr. CARPENTER, at the conclusion of whose remarks the Senate, at 4¾ P. M., went into Executive Session, and subsequently adjourned.

In the House, the bill in reference to the Bureau of Education and discontinuing the Freedmen's Bureau was passed by a vote of 104 to 31. In Committee of the Whole, the debate on the sections of the tariff relating to sugar was continued. Mr. ALLISON's amendment, reducing the duty on clarified sugar from 3 to 2½ cents a pound, was adopted, the vote standing yeas 67, nays 65. No other changes were made in the bill until the paragraph taxing brandy was reached, which, after some debate, was changed from $2, as reported, to $3, by a vote of 80 to 52. Pending the discussion of the section relating to cordials, the Committee rose. Mr. BUTLER, of Massachusetts, then asked leave to introduce a joint resolution to annex the Republic of Dominica, which was objected to, and at 4½ P. M. the House adjourned.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

In the Senate, yesterday, the New-York City Election bill was taken up in Committee of the Whole, and amendments increasing the stringency of the bill were adopted. The bill was subsequently passed by a vote of 22 to 6. The New-York Charter bill was taken up, and after voting down all amendments the Senate passed it by a vote of 25 to 3, the negatives being Messrs. GIBBS and TRAVIS. The State Election bill was made the special order for Thursday evening next. The Senate took a recess till 7½ P. M., when the Rules bill was debated, without final action. In the Assembly a joint resolution regarding the death of Gen. THOMAS, and that the members attend the funeral in a body, was adopted. The Bill relating to unclaimed deposits in savings banks was laid on the table, to await reports of the amounts of such deposits. The bill appropriating $600,000 to tunnel Pine Hill for the Rondout and Oswego Railroad passed. The New-York City election bill was reported and the Senate amendments concurred in.

GENERAL.

Advices from Caracas, Venezuela, to the 20th ultimo, are to the effect that the revolution is spreading and that the State of Bolivia had joined the revolutionists. Gen. BLANCO was advancing on Caracas. President MONAGAS had failed to subdue Cario.

During an inquiry in the Canadian Parliament on Monday night, the belief was expressed that the reported execution of SCOTT in Red River was unfounded, and only circulated to intimidate RIEL's opponents. Col. JOHNSTON, Chief of the Six Nations at Brantford, has offered $20 bravoes to suppress the revolt.

We have returns this morning from all but six towns in Connecticut. Mr. ENGLISH's majority for Governor in these is 655, which will probably be slightly increased by the vote of the towns not heard from, which last year gave Mr. JEWELL four majority. The Democrats have gained the State Senate by one majority; the House of Representatives will be close; the Republicans may have three or four majority.

The California Legislature adjourned sine die on Monday night.

The Indian Commissioner in Washington has received a dispatch from Gov. CAMPBELL, of Wyoming, announcing the safe arrival of the missing stage-coach at South Pass. The Indians engaged in the recent murders are believed to be SIOUX. Gen. AUGUR has sent a company of cavalry to White Water.

The Maryland Legislature adjourned sine die at 12:30 A. M. yesterday.

A Pottsville, Penn., dispatch says the miners' strike has become general in Schuylkill County. But a few small collieries continue work.

During the storm on Monday night the propeller John Taylor, of Albany, ran on Cock's Island, at the southern entrance to the Highlands, Hudson River, and broke in two. The passengers were taken off safe. The vessel will probably be a total loss. Her cargo will be saved.

A motion to dissolve the injunction restraining Mayor ELLYSON, of Richmond, from officiating in that capacity, will be heard in Washington on Thursday, before Chief-Justice CHASE, in Chambers. The legality of the writs of ejectment against ELLYSON are to be referred to Attorney-General HOAR. The State Courts have enjoined the city officials not to pay or otherwise recognize Mayor CAHOON.

The municipal election in Cincinnati has resulted, in the School Board, in the return of twenty-six for the Bible in schools, and twenty-two against.

At the McFarland trial, yesterday, the whole day was occupied in efforts to complete the jury. The result was the securing of only three additional jurors, making eight in all. The jury will probably be completed today.

The New-York Historical Society held its regular monthly meeting last evening. Hon. JOHN BIGELOW read an interesting paper on "Beau Marchais."

The Business Outlook.

The country has been blessed with abundant crops, but not with successful trade. Without any disturbance to our industry from strikes, or the want of raw material, or any demand upon us for money from abroad, in the midst, indeed, of health, plenty and quiet, severe suffering has been felt. We have had all the conditions for success upon which commercial nations rely to accomplish success, but instead of the prosperity that was expected reverses have followed.

Although we are exporting cotton, grain and petroleum in large quantities, profit is made only upon cotton, and that at diminished rates. Last year middlings were sold at this time at twenty-nine cents, and they now bring about twenty-three. The situation with respect to cotton is peculiar. The production of the staple is not yet sufficient for the supply of all the looms in manufacturing countries—a want which permits combination to keep up its price, and particularly as it is more damaging to have machinery idle than to run it at only a small loss. The refiners of petroleum are selling it for export at from a dollar to a dollar and a half per barrel under cost. Upon grain the producer is suffering a loss greater, probably, than that of the refiners of petroleum. The immense woolen manufacture of the United States of cloths and cassimeres is conducted, except for some specific article constituting a specialty, at insufficient remuneration. The cotton mills of the Northern States are worked in but few instances at a profit. It can hardly be supposed, under these adverse circumstances, that trade can be conducted with success, and hence commercial failures. The policy of forcing down gold prematurely has produced these results.

There are numerous buyers in our market, but they purchase sparingly. The idea is quite general among them that we are on the direct road to specie payments, and the reason is given for their light purchases that when this event arrives they prefer, instead of holding large stocks, to be in a situation to purchase freely under the new conditions. Opinion we are told is power, a truth which is fully illustrated in the present state of trade.

Although there has not been a time since the termination of the war when the circumstances were actually less favorable for a return to specie payments than now, because our indebtedness to the other side has been augmenting with each successive day—yet the delusion that we are about to reach the promised goal cannot easily be dispelled. The only feature favorable to such return appears in the general shrinkage in the price of commodities; but as this has been brought about violently, unnaturally and unwisely, it cannot be regarded as one of the means to that end.

The misfortune of nearly all producers and traders in the United States results from this, that they have paid currency prices for what they have to sell and are obliged to sell at very nearly gold prices. If the fall can be maintained, the problem will be solved that $350,109,621 of legal tenders, $39,506,079 61 of fractional currency, $45,505,000 of three per cent. certificates, $38,848,500 of gold certificates and nearly three hundred million dollars of national bank notes—together about seven hundred and eighty millions—is not an excessive paper circulation for this country. We include the three last certificates in the enumeration because they are mainly held by national banks in lieu of a specie or legal tender reserve. The quantity of specie in the banks is referred to as evidence of strength. It must be borne in mind that this consists not of gold but of gold certificates. The $103,415,925 06 of coin held by the Sub-treasury is represented by certificates to the extent of nearly thirty-nine million dollars, most of which is held by banks, largely, however, in the shape of deposits. The Government is the real owner of about twenty-five million dollars of the sum in its coffers.

It is supposed that a moderate advance in prices must take place soon after Congress adjourns, as the passage of the Funding bill, with the clause authorizing the absorption of legal tenders, is not expected. The rapidity of the advance will be promoted whenever the foreigner, to whom we are heavily indebted in bonds for national and corporate debts and for temporary balances, shall require coin. As long as the rate of interest in England remains at three per cent., or under four, or perhaps five, the rate will be accepted as indicating that money is not in urgent demand in Europe. This will allow us to go on in the imprudence of incurring debt, and thus enable us to keep exchange in our favor, and continue the delusion that it results from a favorable balance of trade. The failure to pass a funding bill armed with the authority it contains to absorb the legal tenders and enforce its provisions, will be beneficial to trade at least for the present, as it will be equivalent to an announcement that a return to specie payments is postponed until we shall have acquired the gold which authorizes a step so decisive.

Municipal Reform.

The almost unanimous demand of the people of this Metropolis for a thorough reform in the election of officers, as well as in the general administration of affairs, has been acceded to in a way and with a celerity which is remarkable. Despite the incredulity as to the possibility of reform expressed by those who thought the City hopelessly given over to the control of lawlessness and corruption, the voice of the law-abiding, order-loving, tax-paying class has been heeded. The new Election law and the new charter, published by us on Tuesday last, were passed by the Senate yesterday and were sent to the Governor for his approval. In all probability they have ere this received his signature and are now laws. The new charter received the vote of every Senator but two, and the new Election law was passed unanimously.

It is almost without precedent that such important action, involving such large reforms, and concerning which there has been such a sharp factional contest, should be attended with such unanimity. One of the most singular things connected with the whole affair seems to us to be the entire lack of influence exerted by the Union League Club, or by Mr. GREELEY, as their accredited spokesman, even upon the Republican members of the Legislature. It would have been fair to expect that so pronounced an expression by that body would have been heeded by at least one Republican Senator, but it seems that it was not.

Another most singular feature of yesterday's work was the final demonstration which it afforded of the utter fiasco of the O'Brien or World faction of the Democracy. It was a most lame and impotent conclusion of a movement which was begun with a high-sounding proclamation, and waged with an unwonted show of vigor. The result to that faction has been a most humiliating and ignominious defeat. Recent political history does not record such another.

Of the two enactments we regard the new Election law as the most salutary. It strikes at the very root of the intolerable evil which has hitherto existed, by placing it in the power of the people to secure an honest expression of the general will. Hereafter, if the responsible and honest portion of our citizens will but attend to their duties, we can have fair elections. If they do not, they will be estopped of future complaint. To the State at large the new bill is of special importance, in that it will prevent a repetition of these monstrous frauds by which the voice of the rural districts has been overcome and its majorities nullified.

The new charter is very generally conceded to be a good one. The vote by which it was passed ought certainly to be accepted as a sufficient guarantee that it is. It is not to be supposed that the Citizens' Association and the members of both Houses of the Legislature could be induced to sanction it, if it were not. In the matter of practical interpretation and judgment of so important and formidable a document, we defer to the opinions of those who have given it that close examination which it deserves. We have the assurances of the best men of both parties that it is a substantial and reliable reform, and from the examination we have been able to give it we are inclined to concur in that opinion. At all events, it is a vast improvement upon the old one, and if it shall be put in operation by Mayor HALL with that regard for the general welfare which we have reason to anticipate, we feel sure that our citizens will have reason to count yesterday's work in the Legislature as most important and salutary.

Poor Ireland!

The more we consider Mr. GLADSTONE's bill for "preserving the peace" in Ireland, the deeper becomes our conviction that it is a measure which cannot fail to aggravate the sufferings of the Irish people, and to render the ancient differences between England and Ireland perfectly hopeless of adjustment. The Irish people may well say, "if this is what we are to get from a Liberal Government, the sooner we fall under the comparatively gentle rule of the Tories the better." Let us look into one or two of the provisions, as expounded by the Pall Mall Gazette—which heartily approves of the bill, and only grumbles because it was not introduced before.

Resident magistrates and county inspectors are to have warrants placed in their hands authorizing them to search any man's house for arms of all times of the day or night. If A has a grudge against B, he has only to give the nearest Magistrate a hint that the said B has arms in his possession, or that he has written a threatening letter. B's premises may then be ransacked, and if a pistol is found, or a scrap of writing which seems to connect him with threatening letters, he may be sent to prison and kept to hard labor for two years. In the time of the French Revolution, when any man who was declared "suspect" was torn away from his family and sent to prison, greater wrongs were not possible than under the system of espionage thus established by Mr. GLADSTONE.

If a man is found walking out of doors after dark in proclaimed districts he may be arrested. "If he can show no lawful purpose or excuse in being abroad at night he may be imprisoned for six months." Thus if a man went out to smoke a pipe with his neighbor he might explain the crime by six months' imprisonment.

Inns may be closed at sunset by the Police, and "suspicious strangers" lodged in jail. People had better be careful how they go traveling in Ireland for some time to come. Newspapers which give offense to the Government are not to be prosecuted according to the ordinary forms of law, but the Police are empowered to walk into the office, seize the type and machinery, turn out the editors, and lock the premises up. No such despotic measure has been attempted in a "free" country for many a long day.

If a witness is summoned before a Magistrate, and cannot or will not give evidence, he may be summarily committed to prison for six months. Why not revive the peine fort et dure at once? It would have been quite worthy of the general character of this bill. Persons accused under most of the provisions of the act will have no right to demand a trial by jury, but may be sent to jail by the Justices off-hand.

There were always plenty of "sneaking spies" in Ireland who were only too ready to turn round and "inform" upon any one against whom they had a spite. Henceforth this class will have their hands quite full. As blood-money is to be paid to the informer, the game will be lucrative in itself, and afford the opportunity for wreaking private malice. Thus, once more is Ireland to be handed over to base-hearted spies and relentless police. Men are to be brought up for a hurried trial, and deprived of their liberty under the influence of panic, or a desire to "please the Government." What can we look for but sorrow and disaster from a law which sanctions all these cruel outrages? Mr. GLADSTONE has made a false step which ought to result in his ruin, as it will assuredly leave an everlasting stain upon his reputation.

Labors of a Legislative Committee.

Our readers must have often felt a deep compassion for the severe labors of the legislators at Albany. The weary hours of Committee-work and long sessions, and the application of brain to the many difficult questions of finance and political economy which come before them, tell on the overworked organizations of our law-givers. When accordingly they are appointed on Committees of Investigation, it is but natural that they should need refreshment and stimulus. None but a penny-wise, narrow reformer would begrudge them their glass of wine and cigar on their Committee duties. Great mental efforts, it is well-known, produce a corresponding drain on the physical system. The legitimate effect of alcohol and tobacco, we are assured by physiologists, is "to retard waste." What the brain-waste of our honored legislators at Albany must be, may be judged from a "little bill" presented recently at the meeting of the "Board of Commissioners of Emigration."

Our readers will remember that about a month ago some of the unemployed men supported by this Board on Ward's Island, becoming ennuyéd by a long Winter of idleness, went into a little scrimmage to relieve the monotony of an almshouse life. A few heads were broken, when at length the Superintendent, with the aid of the Police, quelled the disturbance, and all became quiet again. This important occurrence was at once telegraphed to Albany, and a Legislative "Committee" appointed to investigate the matter. One can faintly imagine the trying questions of administration, economy and finance in the management of Ward's Island, which came before this able and august Committee. The strain on the nervous system and the "brain-waste" can only be judged of by the methods adopted to "retard" it.

The Committee was, we think, composed of four members. Their first session, on March 5, was a peculiarly exhausting one, from 1 o'clock to 7¼. During this time they consumed, made away with, or carried off bodily, the following gentle stimulants: Four hundred cigars, three and a half dozen champagne, eighteen bottles of brandy, nine ditto of whisky, three ditto of Madeira and three of claret. Their next session, on March 7, at Castle Garden, does not seem to have been so trying, being only from 11 o'clock A. M. to 4 P. M. On this occasion the waste was easily relieved by sixty-six bottles of wine and twenty-seven of brandy and whisky. Their last effort, on Saturday, March 12, must have been mere play, as it occupied but two hours, and was relieved only by the trifle of three gallons of sherry and three hundred cigars. This able and difficult investigation only cost the Commission some $374, which was very cheap indeed.

We exceedingly regret that we cannot lay before our readers the ponderous results of this hard-working Commission. Whether it was ascertained that the "Dutch" or the "Irish" faction gained the day in the scrimmage, or that the bread for the emigrants was "soggy," or the meat salt or not, we have not been able as yet to inform ourselves. Possibly these profound and intricate investigations somewhat obscured the mental faculties of this able Committee, and they are not fully aware themselves of the conclusions at which they arrived. This blow can hardly be relished of by the "boys" which a grateful Commonwealth will pay.

Our Merchant and National Commerce.

It is not to be wondered at that our natural pride should be wounded by the decay of American shipping, and by the necessity which has intervened since the rebellion broke out of relying upon foreign merchant service to make our commercial exchanges. Previous to 1861 it had been our boast that American ships penetrated every sea and that our flag floated in every port. The exigencies of war, however, destroyed our growing maritime supremacy, and the resulting derangement of industry and prices have rendered us unable to compete with other nations as formerly. We find ourselves unable to construct ships as cheaply as other nations, and consequently unable to compete for the commerce of the world on advantageous terms. One reason for this is to be found in the revolution which has taken place in the construction of ships and in the material used. Iron is fast superseding wood, and organized facilities in the way of skilled labor and machinery have become so firmly established abroad, particularly in Great Britain, that rivalry on our part for the present is almost hopeless.

The Clyde, the Mersey, and the Thames are lined with docks, and resound with the clangor of forges and riveting-hammers rearing huge hulks. The banks of the former river are for miles a continuous dock-yard, constantly turning out splendid vessels for sale in the world's market. As yet they can be produced there far cheaper than in this country, and the consequence is that we must either buy or forego our wonted competition in the merchant service. To our mind the problem how to overcome this disadvantage is one which, in due time, will solve itself. It certainly need not be a matter of undue solicitude. Until we can obtain cheap materials and labor we cannot hope to accomplish it, and it would be folly to add to the general burden by subsidizing American shipping. Such a policy would simply be an invidious favoring of one interest at the expense of all others.

The true remedy lies in a rigid economy and retrenchment, and in such a material reduction of taxation that enterprise will be stimulated, capital brought into active and profitable use, and labor cheapened by a material reduction in the cost of living. These things accomplished, we shall be able to compete with the world in the construction of ships, both of wood and iron. We have unlimited resources of both materials. In a very few years, with a permanent and judicious policy, we shall be able to furnish iron for ship-building, of superior quality and at less cost than Great Britain. It only requires that capital and labor shall be developed, and we shall be in a situation to supply the world instead of being a buyer abroad. Until that time arrives we maintain that our true policy is to go into the open market, and buy ships for foreign trade where we can get them cheapest. It certainly is a fallacy to undertake to control the natural law of supply and demand by so shallow a device as that of paying subsidies, which is simply taking money from one class and giving it to another.

Public money expended in subsidizing ocean steamers would benefit comparatively a small interest. There is a deal of popular delusion in regard to our foreign commerce. It is far inferior, both in extent and importance, to our great inland trade. The commerce of the lakes is considerably greater than that of New-York, and so is that of the Ohio or the Mississippi. Considered as a matter of material advantage and development, it is of infinitely more importance that our great inland system of intercommunication should be fostered by means of Government appropriations than that American-built ocean vessels should be subsidized. The channels of our great rivers need to be improved, harbors constructed upon our magnificent chain of lakes, canals and railroads aided and encouraged, so that the people shall have adequate avenues in every direction from the center to the circumference of our country. In that way manufactures and agriculture will be brought together and enabled to effect cheap exchanges, while the surplus will find its way to the markets of the world at a cost of transportation which will enable the American producer to compete successfully, and regulate our foreign exchange of values.

It makes but little real difference whether these commercial exchanges are effected in American or foreign ships, so long as it is done as cheaply or cheaper than we could do it ourselves. The world's marine competitions will always adjust freights, so that American markets will be supplied without undue discrimination against us. We may safely leave that matter to regulate itself for the present at least, but our inland commerce is a very different affair. It must be manipulated by the Government in order to enable the interior producer to reach the international carrier and compete successfully in foreign markets. The Iowa farmer must be able to sell his wheat in Liverpool in competition with the Odessa merchant, and in order to enable him to do so the cost of inland transportation must be reduced to the lowest practicable point by means of adequate and free avenues to the seaboard. Interior competitions must be created to that end, which can only be done by the General Government. Until it is done our vast domain will be a source of isolation, and the people will be hampered rather than benefited by their surplus productions. Hence, we say that it is our inland commerce rather than our ocean marine that chiefly demands protection and development at the hands of Congress.

The movement in the House of Representatives yesterday, to make the Congressional elections uniform throughout the country, is a most acceptable one—important in respect to uniformity, and valuable as guarding against double voting on the Congressional tickets in different States. The bill, which will no doubt become an act of Congress, is to go into effect under the new census of 1870, in November, 1872.

Mr. LOGAN's Army bill was pushed through the House as a severe and rapid measure, but successful, measure of economy. And now comes Mr. WILSON with another bill in the Senate, the argument for which is that it will "save millions, while Mr. LOGAN's bill would increase the expenditures by three millions." This is all very well for Mr. WILSON's sake, but how is it for Mr. LOGAN's? And how can we be sure that some other arithmetician will not figure up, by and by, that Mr. WILSON's bill will increase the cost by five millions, while his opponent will save ten? We incline to think that there needs to be some more figuring on the subject before a result is reached, and that we may be best off for the present if we do well enough alone.

Judge LEGRANDE has done his duty in refusing to interfere with the sentence passed on REYNOLDS, the murderer. We cannot believe that Gov. HOFFMAN will be less mindful of his responsibilities to the public. There is not the slightest real ground for the appeal made on behalf of REYNOLDS. Medical men of first-rate ability and experience have examined him, and declared that he is fully accountable for his actions. In the face of their testimony, an opinion from "Dr. ROSENBERG" is of no value. Dr. OLTMER certifies that he was asked to see REYNOLDS, did so, and told prisoner's counsel that he had better not call him to give evidence. All the circumstances in connection with the defense are so clear that Gov. HOFFMAN cannot be deluded by any of them. If our laws are not to be made into a complete laughing-stock, the sentence on REYNOLDS ought to be carried out.

Some people expect a good deal from women when once they fairly take part in the great questions of the day and contribute to the stock of public ideas; and there is no doubt they will make a number of sensible suggestions. The other day FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE, in a communication to the New-York Prison Association, advised them to turn the jails into workshops, where criminals could pay for property stolen and their own expenses. The idea is a good one in its simple directness, and also as it leads to the more radical idea of setting people to work without the necessity of going to jails—that is, of regulating and distributing them, in this country of undeveloped resources, into all districts and departments where their work would be needed and profitable. By such means a great crowd of persons would be kept out of the prisons; and for this great and the good sense of society will, no doubt, provide a proper system in time.

We have just concluded the fifth annual return of the eventful period which, perhaps more than any other, will mold the national destiny. It will be remembered that SHERIDAN returned on the 26th of March, 1865, from his famous raid on the James River Canal. Five days after came Five Forks, on March 31 and April 1. On the 2d of April, GRANT assaulted and took the Petersburg lines. Then followed the evacuation of Richmond, the pursuit and capitulation of LEE's army, and finally, on April 10, the capture of JEFFERSON DAVIS himself. These memorable events we now look back upon not with unbecoming exultation, but with devout thankfulness that through them Providence permitted us to gain the assurance of continued and undivided national existence; and that the South itself is thus early persuaded that even for her own true and permanent welfare events could not have better happened otherwise.

A slander of a peculiarly gross description was telegraphed over the cable the other day to a contemporary. It reflected upon the character of Mr. PAUL FORBES in so odious a manner, that every one acquainted with the high character of the gentleman in question must have at once suspected the truth about its origin. The Herald, which published the dispatch, cannot possibly have been aware of its true purport—it is not always possible to prevent a telegram creeping into a newspaper at a late hour of the night. But that the message itself was dictated by the basest malignity on the part of a certain Cuban "ring" is as clear as the sun at noonday. Mr. PAUL FORBES needs no vindication at our hands, but it is hard for any man to find himself the subject of a malicious attack through a medium which is necessarily circulated from one end of the country to the other.

A very forcible illustration of the unfavorable results of the existing tariff on iron has just been made in Detroit, and fully sustains Commissioner WELLS' report. Mr. WILLARD S. POPE, a civil engineer and a stockholder in the Detroit Bridge and Iron Works, asserts that the increased cost of pig-iron under the present tariff almost entirely forbids its use in bridge-building, and therefore prevents the employment of thousands of men in that line. Iron bridges now cost from sixty to one hundred per cent. more than wooden ones, but with a price bearing a fair relation to the cost of production the difference would be reduced to twenty per cent. Iron would then be almost exclusively used for bridges, and a hundred times as much would be used, to say nothing of the increased employment of capital and labor, and the greater revenue which would be received by the Government. Commissioner WELLS also estimates that under the present tariff at least forty thousand men are prevented from finding employment in the building, equipment and sailing of iron sea-going vessels, who would otherwise be actively engaged in that business.

Mr. THURLOW WEED has written an interesting chapter on President LINCOLN as a Cabinet-maker. It will be found in another part of this paper. Although short, it contains several facts that will be new to the general public, and will increase the desire of the reader to see the complete autobiography so long promised.

A new comic paper has been started in New-York, the first number of which was not very brilliant, and the second of which was a great improvement on the first. Much good may be done by a really clever humorous journal, and we shall be glad to see the projectors of Punchinello liberally encouraged, so that they may do all that is in them to win success. The occasion naturally provokes much comment regarding funny papers in general and the reasons in particular of their failure among ourselves. We imagine that the enigma, like many others, may be solved by simple reference to habit. The London Punch when started was the only publication of its class, and there are several

WASHINGTON.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—The debate in the House for the past two days has been wholly confined to the sugar clause. Yesterday the Committee was sustained by fixing the duty on raw or Muscovado sugars at two cents per pound, with an amendment to the clause which is a curious thing. After providing for a duty of two cents on all raw or Muscovado sugars, they insert, "and on all other sugars not above No. 12 Dutch Standard in color." Now this is precisely what raw Muscovado sugars are, and the question is, why repeat the enactment of the same duty on the same thing? The result is that a certain small quantity of Porto Rico sugars, which come from the top of the hogshead when the molasses is drained off, and are, therefore, brighter and dryer than most raw sugars, and fit for the use of some classes, but still not above No. 12 Dutch Standard in color, are thus admitted at the same rate as the refiners' sugars. This was thrown out as an inducement to secure votes for the next clause, providing the duty on clarified sugars, which was fixed by the Committee at three cents per pound, a reduction of only half a cent per pound, while the reduction on the refiners' sugars is from three to two cents, or one cent per pound. Today the contest on clarified sugars began, and was again most vigorously conducted by Messrs. ALLISON and SCHENCK. The former moved to strike out three and insert two and a half cents per pound, so as to give the consumer the benefit of the same reduction on clarified sugars that the refiner has on raw sugars, to wit: one cent per pound. After nearly two hours, discussion ALLISON came off victorious by only two majority, the vote standing 67 to 65. This is a step in the right direction, and indicates that some of the errors in the classifications of the bill on other articles will also be corrected. On refined sugars the Committee's rates were agreed to, viz: four cents. A substitute for this clause was submitted by Gen. SCHENCK and agreed to, which changes the phraseology, but not the rate of duty. Syrups, molasses, and all the spices were then passed. The proposal of the Committee to put cotton machinery on the free list, in order to get the Southern vote, has startled the steel and machinery men of New-England from their very foundations, and they consider it a piece of injustice and treachery; the bill really puts up the duty on steel by the new classification, and now to admit machinery free is an awful blow to these men; they therefore threaten a solid vote from New-England against the leading features of the bill, unless there is a compromise. This development, on the whole, is a good thing; it teaches people, and especially members of Congress, that there is no hope for a settlement of these questions, save in genuine tariff reform. There is a deplorable amount of ignorance still prevalent in the House, notwithstanding all the talk on the subject. Mr. MARSHALL, of Illinois, Democrat, made an adroit bid for the negro vote yesterday, when he said he thought they would prefer cheap hats, cheap shoes, cheap shirts, cheap hoes and cheap plows, in preference to free cotton machinery free and high-priced iron and steel as a consequence.

THE FUNDING BILL.

The Banking and Currency Committee, at their meeting today, listened to an argument from Hon. AMASA WALKER, political economist, against any increase of bank or other irredeemable circulation, and against the Funding bill. The Committee did no business, and have as yet arrived at no conclusions on these subjects.

THE VENEZUELA CLAIMS.

The House Committee on Foreign Affairs have made short work of the claim set up by the Venezuelan Government that there was fraud in the action of the Commission appointed to settle claims between the two Governments. The papers from that Government, which pretend to sustain that charge, were only presented to the House last week, yet the Committee were able, yesterday, to agree on the following resolution:

Resolved, That the adjudication of claims pursuant to the terms of the Convention with Venezuela, is recognized as fair, conclusive and just against said Republic, and for the purpose of entering and collecting the sum of money so awarded, the President is hereby authorized and directed to make demand upon the Republic of Venezuela for payment of said sum, and in case of neglect or refusal to make such payment, that he employ such portion of the naval or military force, as may be necessary, in his judgment, to secure the faithful performance of the terms of said Convention.

THE ALASKA SEAL FISHERIES.

Mr. DIXON, Chairman of the Committee on Commerce of the House, will endeavor to obtain the floor some day this week, for the purpose of calling up the bill regulating the Alaska fur seal fisheries. The Secretary of the Treasury is particularly anxious that this measure should be disposed of as early as possible. The season for taking the seals has come, and the interests of the Government and of the revenue will suffer unless he is empowered to take speedy action on the subject.

THE ARMY BILL.

The subject of the army reduction and reorganization, as proposed in the bill of Gen. LOGAN, was yesterday considered in the Military Committee of the Senate. Mr. WILSON's bill was read and compared with Gen. LOGAN's measure, and the sentiment of the Committee appeared to be in favor of reporting the former. Both bills agree substantially, so far as the reduction of the army is concerned, but they reach that end by different means. The pay sections were under discussion principally, and, being the same in both bills, they will be agreed to, but the provision for monthly payments will be stricken out by the Committee, who are of the opinion that the present system is sufficient for all requirements of the service.

A NOVEL QUESTION IN THE SUPREME COURT.

The Supreme Court yesterday appointed a committee of three to investigate a rather novel case which was presented some time ago. A colored man named A. A. BRADLEY, formerly of Boston, and latterly of Georgia, was admitted to practice in the Court. Since his admission it has been ascertained that he was debarred for some cause or other, while in Massachusetts, and on becoming cognizant of this state of facts the Court suspended him. There is no difficulty whatever as regards color, and the Committee was appointed simply to inquire into his legal status and qualifications.

GEORGIA.

It would appear as if Georgia was destined, or intended to remain with us, to the end of the legislative chapter of the present session of Congress. The entire reconstruction question, with all its bitterness and bickerings, and possible and impossible, practicable and impracticable theories, enter into the debate from day to day, without the slightest prospect of an end coming to the dreary tale. Mr. SUMNER made one of his able and characteristic speeches today, and we had an eloquent burst from the Hon. Mr. CARPENTER, who went back to war days and before that time. A faint effort was made to secure a vote to-morrow evening, and everybody was willing, except some extreme Radical Senators, who would not hear of the proposition. The disposition to talk was so great that a motion to go into Executive Session was strongly resisted, but a majority decided for that course, as it was the only mode of escape from theorizing, and so-called statesmanship.

REGISTRATION OF FOREIGN SHIPS.

The Committees of Commerce of the Senate and House hold a joint meeting to-morrow morning to decide on some line of policy relative to the numerous applications coming from the seaboard all over the United States, for the naturalization and registration of foreign ships. This question has been frequently talked over

CONNECTICUT.

Hartford, Conn., April 5.—The Governor-elect is supposed to be one of the Democratic persuasion. The Senate Probably Democratic.

Our special correspondent in Connecticut continues to give this morning nearly complete returns by towns of the vote for Governor in that State on Monday. We have the vote in all but six towns, which last year gave Mr. JEWELL a majority. It will be seen that Mr. ENGLISH's majority for Governor, with these six towns to be heard from, is 655.

EUROPEAN NEWS BY MAIL.

ARRIVAL OF THE CUNARD STEAM-SHIP CALEDONIA.

The steam-ship Caledonia, from Liverpool March 26 and Queenstown March 27, reached this port yesterday. Her advices are later by one day than those at hand Monday night, by the Ville de Paris, to the Captain of which vessel we are much indebted for recent continental papers.

From information received by the Liberté in the Legislative Body, it would seem that the Chamber is disposed to lower the octroi duties at Paris, Lyons and a few other towns.

"M. JAMES FAZY," says the Reveil, "is on the point of quitting Geneva to fix his residence definitively in Paris. It is reported that he entertains a project of establishing a financial company in the French capital."

A telegram dated March 24 and printed in the Augsburger Allgemeine Zeitung, says that on Dr. STROSSMAYER declaring at a sitting of the Ecumenical Council that a new dogma of faith could not be established without a moral unanimity of the Fathers, he was ordered by the President of the Council to leave the Council. This incident gave rise to a most tumultuous scene in the assembly.

PIERRE BONAPARTE.

Further Proceedings in the High Court at Tours.

We continue the publication of the proceedings in the High Court at Tours. Below will be found the testimony adduced and the incidents witnessed on the fourth day:

On March 24, on the Judges taking their seats, M. BERNHEIM, avocat, gave formal notice that the family VICTOR NOIR had constituted themselves plaintiffs in a demand for damages.

The examination of witnesses for the defense was then resumed.

M. THERESIN, Commissary of Police at Passy: I was taken by Dr. MONIE to the residence of the Prince, at about 4 the afternoon; Prince PIERRE told me that he had been struck by two individuals; in a café, I was informed by a person named BARTHELEMY that he had heard M. DE FONVIELLE say that the Prince had received a slap in the face; I did not remark any traces of blows on the cheek of the Prince; I did not think necessary to arrest him, as he placed himself at my disposal.

M. DE LA GARDE, journalist: I met M. DE CASAGNAC and M. CARANOVA on the Boulevards in Paris on the day of the event; we went together to the Prince, and I remarked a red mark on his face as large as a five-franc piece.

Count DE LASALLE, a retired Colonel of a cavalry regiment: It was at the Café du Helder at Paris during the evening of the 10th, and the master of the establishment told me that he had heard a woman cupping there say: "If VICTOR NOIR had had a loaded pistol in the presence of a BONAPARTE he would not have missed the opportunity of smashing his face."

M. BOUVET, of the Café de Madrid, and M. CONSTANT, keeper of a large restaurant, gave evidence as to the violent character of VICTOR NOIR, the result which ensued, "The gendarmes surrounded M. DE FONVIELLE and removed him by force from the Court, while at the same time the Prince was also taken out. The partisans of the two sides apostrophized each other, and the voice of the President was for several minutes drowned in the confusion.

When order was restored,

The Procureur-General rose and said: The incident which has just occurred is of incontestable gravity. A witness, M. DE FONVIELLE, has been guilty of a manifestation which cannot be allowed to remain unpunished. I will not have him brought to the bar of this Court as I might do, for he is still too much excited; I only call attention to the fact, and will reserve my right of, at the close of the sitting, demanding a punishment.

M. LAURIER—I have sufficient calm at this moment to introduce no irritating element into this discussion. I ask the Court, without provocation or pretext, the accused made a violent and personal attack on an advocate. So far as I am concerned I despise such insults. I did not laugh at the deposition of a witness, and if the accused thought so he was mistaken. Me one professor accept responsibility for his situation. In presence of the word fraction applied to a great party, which is perhaps not that of the accused, but to which we are proud to belong, I beg the Court to consider that M. DE FONVIELLE was acting under a provocation, and to permit him to return.

The PROCUREUR-GENERAL—I do not pay attention to the words used by the accused, but to the tumult and to the person who was the cause of it. I demand that a procès-verbal of the incident should be drawn up.

The Court retired to deliberate, and after an absence of three-quarters of an hour, returned and ordered that a procès-verbal should be registered of M. GRANDPERRET's application relative to the language of M. DE FONVIELLE, and that punishment should be afterward inflicted if the case should demand it.

The President then turning to the prisoner, recommended him to observe the greatest moderation, and remarked that the incident which had just occurred was in great part his fault, and that he had no right to insult the members of the Bar.

The ACCUSED—I only addressed my observations to M. LAURIER.

The PRESIDENT—You have no right to make offensive observations to him any more than to any other barrister.

M. LAURIER appealed to the Court as to whether he had not always shown every consideration for the Prince.

The PRESIDENT—Certainly.

M. LEROUX remarked that the prisoner had been called murderer and blackguard.

The PRESIDENT—We lament the violent expressions used, but you must remember that I instantly called the witness to order.

Dr. BOUDET deposed that he was with the prisoner in Africa, where the latter had always conducted himself as a man of honor and courage.

M. GIACOMETTI stated that he was acquainted with the Prince, and that in 1860 he went on his friend's behalf to challenge a person who had insulted the prisoner in a railway carriage. The individual apologized and the affair terminated.

M. BOUSQUET, rentier, stated that about a year ago he waited upon VICTOR NOIR with a challenge on behalf of M. COMBERBE; that the deceased refused to accept, and after some time the matter was arranged, and when it was concluded VICTOR NOIR said to witness: "It is fortunate for your friend that I did not meet him. I was armed, and if he had made a threatening gesture I should have killed him."

M. CHYONI, clerk, deposed that he had served under GARIBALDI in the same regiment as M. DE FONVIELLE, and that they together having seized an officer who was flying from Capua with some plate and 20,000 francs, DE FONVIELLE had taken possession of 1,500 francs of the money.

The PRESIDENT—We have no right to control the evidence to be offered, but we may say that in our opinion this witness need not have been brought.

In cross-examination, this witness admitted that he had been sentenced to three years' penal servitude for desertion.

M. KERGOMAR, recalled, declared that, although he previously maintained at the sitting that he had never heard of the event above related,

M. BLOUET, Professor at Military School, [illegible] in the event with the last witness, said DE FONVIELLE; a thief was detected and he struck him; nothing occurred in consequence of his coming to my knowledge, and I must have in this circumstance relative to the one thousand five hundred francs; moreover, M. DE FONVIELLE, after the war, was taken to America by M. OLIVIERE, who afterward became a General there, and who certainly would not have taken with a thief if the other had been a thief.

M. LAURIER—I have just received a telegram from Gen. OLIVIERE; it is in the following effect: "I commanded the army, CHANZY the fleet." [Movement.]

M. FLOQUET then rose to address the jury on behalf of M. and Mme. SALMON. He commenced by depicting the grief of the family at the terrible outrage, and drew attention to the admirable manner in which they had borne their suffering, as they had carefully avoided making any appeal to public sympathy; what he asked on behalf of his clients was equality, and he could only regard Prince PIERRE as a prisoner; he would make no complaint as to the exceptional proceedings, he strongly suggested what he termed the privileged proceedings in favor of the prisoner, such as leaving the latter in his own house for some hours after the crime had been committed, the arrest of several of the witnesses on the charge of being concerned in a conspiracy against the Emperor, the Deposition of the Legislative Corps behind the Court in consequence of two generals; he complained that even whenat the Conclusion the accused was treated with exceptional favor; his friends were permitted free access to him, and in fact he kept open house. The advocate remarked that there were the first steps in opposition to the republican and the third declared, that the idea having arisen that some palliation for the crime must be found, the report was started that the accused was himself the object of a conspiracy by which his life was menaced. M. FLOQUET then proceeded to recapitulate the evidence of the witnesses who had testified to hearing threats against the Prince uttered by the deceased and his friends, and contended that the testimony was fabricated; he then enlarged on the upright and peaceable character of the deceased, repeating all the incidents which had been mentioned in favor of the latter, and then, after strongly protesting against the accusation which had been brought against the Prince Pierre, he proceeded to examine the antecedents of the deceased, commenced by observing that the President had only referred to a sentence against the Prince of a fine of 300 francs for striking the Representative GARTIER, but that many other acts of violence—

[illegible] accused rose.

M. LAURIER—Keep quiet, Prince; let him talk.

The ACCUSED—Do not you see that he wants to provoke me?

M. FLOQUET—I have here a document showing the condemnations he has undergone. First of all, to imprisonment, and afterward death in 1841 for the killed two gendarmes and officers in Corfu, and was expelled from the island by the English Government. The fact is proved by a letter from a former functionary of Great Britain in the Times.

The ACCUSED—That letter is denied by an official document.

The PRESIDENT—Your defenders will have the right to reply in their turn.

M. FLOQUET read the letter in question and continued: I affirm that in 1836 PIERRE BONAPARTE wounded a man in America, killed two gendarmes in Rome, and two Custom-house officers in Corsica; then I compare his character with that of the deceased I justified in saying that he is a much more violent man than was VICTOR NOIR, who once permitted himself to speak too loudly in a café.

At this point the President interrupted the proceedings, and ordered M. DE FONVIELLE to be brought into Court.

That gentleman appeared in custody of gendarmes, and took the place of Prince PIERRE BONAPARTE, who had been removed.

M. LOUVET, Commissary CENTRAL, Capt. WARNEMONT, of the Gendarmerie, M. ARCHAMBAULT, Sergeant-Major, and Sergeant were examined, and stated that they heard M. DE FONVIELLE exclaim: "You murdered NOIR! Dare to look me in the face and to say that you did not kill my friend in a cowardly manner. You are a murderer! A morte! à morte!"

M. DE FONVIELLE admitted that he regretted to have been led away by his excitement and to have uttered the phrases attributed to him except the "A morte!" which he strongly denied.

The Court retired to deliberate, and, on returning, the President stated that the whole charge was considered as proved, but that, considering the provocation received by DE FONVIELLE, it sentenced him solely to ten days' imprisonment, fifty francs fine, and the costs of the incident.

The Court then adjourned in the midst of great agitation.

FIFTH DAY.

In regard to the trial of March 25, the following telegrams were received:

TOURS, March 25.

The trial of Prince BONAPARTE was continued today. The President informed the counsel engaged in the case that he will put before the jury the fact, as the result of the trial, the question whether the Prince was not justified by provocation in acting as he did.

M. LEROUX said that he would plead that the Prince had only acted in his legitimate defence.

Doctors TARDIEU and FRIEL were confronted, when a Surryman asked Dr. TARDIEU if VICTOR NOIR, being mortally wounded, could hold his hat in his hand while falling. Dr. TARDIEU replied affirmatively.

Maitre FLOQUET, counsel for the NOIR family, resumed pleading. He sought to prove that the prisoner did not act in legitimate self-defence. The Prince hence appealed to the jury and said a few words, but was interrupted by the President. Maitre FLOQUET continued his speech, and called upon the jury to find the prisoner guilty of murder, as the hypothesis of his having received a blow was inadmissible.

After Maitre FLOQUET's speech the sitting was suspended for an hour, and resumed at 5 P.M. Maitre LAURIER then proceeded to address the Court, and spoke in eulogistic terms of VICTOR NOIR. Speaking of the Prince he said that his career had been bloodstained throughout; and while describing the fatal scene at Auteuil he observed that the Prince might whether it took place in the house of a BONAPARTE or of a BORGIA. This caused a great sensation in Court, and the President recommended M. LAURIER to be moderate in his expressions; but M. LAURIER maintained his right of liberty of speech, and said the prisoner's utterly undisciplined manner showed he had been the aggressor at Auteuil.

Maitre LAURIER maintained that NOIR could not have struck a blow, since his gloves were intact and his hat was in his hand when falling. He concluded by saying, VICTOR NOIR has acquired a martyr's immortality, the prisoner the immortality of infamy." The prisoner protested against this language, and Maitre LAURIER was rebuked for it by the President. The sitting closed at 4:50.

AMUSEMENTS.

Theatrical.

THE TAMMANY.

The Tammany has been re-opened, and is announced to rank with the permanent theaters of the City for an indefinite period. The first showing of the new programme was effected Monday, to the satisfaction of a numerous audience. The bill, which was repeated last night, and which will be maintained throughout the week, is comprehensive and varied. Learned dogs and monkeys are exhibited, comic singers and singers of sentimentalities are heard, acrobats are whirled about, negro minstrels are introduced and ballet dancers are marshaled in succession during the three hours and a half its review demands. We have not space at present to allude to all its points. The most interesting and amusing performance of the evening is that of Mr. G. W. JESTER, a ventriloquist who in command of voice and of feature we have never heard or seen surpassed. The juggling of M. AGOUT is also remarkably clever, and the Ethiopian drolleries of Mr. COOL BURGESS, funny though or because strictly conventional. We confess to a slight disappointment in respect of the Spanish ballet dancers, and to a serious one in relation to Mlle. AZELIA. The accuracy of the national dances the former offer is not to be questioned, but their grace and picturesqueness will not be quarreled over. As for Mlle. AZELIA, that lady simply repeats the early trapeze feats of the HANLONS, and does so with an awkwardness that would be disagreeable enough were the earth the kingdom of the artist instead of the air. But it were unjust from these notes to pass condemnation upon the whole entertainment, which is sufficiently liberal to be suited to most tastes. Almost all the frequenters of the Tammany, naturally, are men; and as a visit can be paid the institution with a freedom in the matter of smoking and refreshments not to be enjoyed elsewhere, this advantage will go far toward reconciling the one with the checkered character of the representations. It is proposed to renew the bill every week.

Musical.

MISCELLANEOUS NOTES.

The many friends of Mrs. CHARLES MOULTON will be pleased to learn that there is a probability that she will, ere long, revisit America. This lady, whose singing afforded such delight last Winter, has received a tempting offer to take part in concerts here. It is likely, however, that she will return in the double capacity of songstress and manageress. She will be welcome as either, or both.... The first of the promised series of concerts by Mlle. CARLOTTA PATTI occurs at Steinway Hall this evening. The lady sings, among other morceaux, a bolero composed expressly for her by M. BITTER.... A concert of the Brooklyn branch of the New-York Conservatory of Music occurs at the hall of the Conservatory, in Court-street, this afternoon. An excellent programme will be interpreted by the professors and pupils of the Conservatory.

Nelson Chesney Superintendent General Government Telegraphs.—The Status of the Telegraph Monopoly.

At the regular meeting, held in Commonwealth Hall, Brooklyn, yesterday evening, Gen. C. Bunnyer, Esq., in the chair—Mr. L. Bennett, of the Post Week, presented the following resolutions, which he asked to have received and laid on the table till the next meeting. The preamble was, in the main, declaratory of the Christianity of the founders of the Government, of the dependence of civil authority upon the sanction of the moral laws and religious truths of Christianity, and of the general education among Christian people of the Bible as the word of God:

Resolved, That we pledge ourselves to support and defend the public common schools of our State, and of the whole country, as the best means of intelligence and contentment, against all assaults.

Resolved, That the will of the people, as the good of the State require that all the funds of the State shall remain such as they are, that the State will make them good interest and yearly, and put into their hands the green trees of liberty, the State, advance our civilization, and [illegible] and defend freedom of conscience.

Resolved, That the daily reading of the Bible in our common schools as historic data, without note or comment, and as part of the regular course of study, is our appropriation and will always receive our earnest and fed support.

Resolved, That we protest against the assumption of the public money raised on us to be raised for the support of our common schools to the use and support of sectarian institutions, by any religious sect whatever or under the conduct; and also that we protest against the grant or gift of public money or property to any religious sect, organization or establishment whatever.

Resolved, That such disposition of the public money and property is a violation of the organic law of the State, of the spirit and letter of our civil and political institutions, and of the principles of our Government under the control of a religious sect. That if continued, it will surely lead to sectarian bitterness and arouse religious intolerance and strife. That this attempt to make a public fund a sectarian fund is a dangerous and malicious attack upon the liberty of our country, and if intended and will lead to the destruction of the one by breaking down the other. That we will resist by all lawful means, such attempts, and we appeal to all the fundamental principles upon which rests the whole fabric of our Republican Government.

Resolved, That the Legislature of the State of New-York be and hereby is requested to repeal all its permit, or, section 10, chapter 502, of the laws of 1860, authorizing the payment of part of the common school funds to sectarian schools.

On the motion of Mr. REEVE the subject was referred to the Executive Committee. The meeting adjourned till Tuesday, the 19th inst.

Brooklyn Board of Education.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Board, held yesterday afternoon, the President, Dr. J. S. THORNE, in the chair, a letter was read from Hon. JOHN G. SCHUMAKER, member of Congress, stating that he had at his disposal the nomination of a cadetship in the navy, and desired the Board to appoint a committee to examine the applicants for the vacancy, and to report the name of the one that may be deemed as eligible. The candidate must reside in the Second Congressional District. Referred to Committee on Scholarships.

The Finance Committee reported that they had examined and passed bills to the amount of $[illegible] 47. Approved.

The Finance Committee was requested to prepare and report to the Board an estimate of the amount required for the support of the schools for 1871.

Mr. FIELD asked for the appointment of another teacher for School No. 2, on the ground that one or more of those employed were invariably laid off from duty by the fever and ague which prevails in that section of the City. The request was granted.

After some routine business the Board adjourned.

The Bar Association.

The Bar Association met last evening, at 8 o'clock, in the Studio Buildings, corner of Fifth-avenue and West Twenty-sixth-street. About one hundred members were present. In the absence of the President, Hon. WILLIAM M. EVARTS, Gen. SAMPSON was called to the chair.

Among those present were Hon. John McKeon, Ex-Judge Emott, Assistant United States District-Attorney B. K. Phelps and Henry D. Cram, Henry Nicoll, Daniel McFarland, Joseph H. Choate and William D. Choate.

Reports were made by the Library and other Committees. The "Century Fund," to consist of one hundred subscriptions of $100 each, to form a nucleus for the purchase of a library, is almost completed. About one hundred new members were elected, and about $20,000 have been received by the Treasurer.

The Association adjourned to meet on the first Tuesday evening in May.

The Return of the Pontifical Zouaves.

The ninety-three Pontifical Zouaves, of the corps enlisted in Canada two years and a half ago, who arrived in this City on their way home from Rome, Monday night, in the Ville de Paris, left for Montreal at noon yesterday. It is reported that they were not entirely satisfied with the treatment they received while in the service, so that when their time was ended they declined to re-enlist. It is understood that the presence of these men is missed at Rome, and that a new detachment will take their place in June. The men wore the uniform of the Papal Zouave service.

Batchelor's Hair Dye.—This splendid Hair Dye is the best in the world. Harmless, reliable, instantaneous. Does not contain lead, nor any vitiate poison to produce paralysis and death. Avoid the wretched and dangerous preparations bearing various titles in imitation of the genuine W. A. BATCHELOR'S HAIR DYE. Has thirty years' reputation to uphold its integrity as the only perfect Hair Dye. Black or brown. Sold by all druggists. Applied at No. 16 Bond-st., New-York.

Oldridge's Balm for Mothers, Nurseries, Complexions and Infants.—Fitted with every convenience, and the best furnished apartments in the City.—No. 18 Bond-st., opposite the new Post-office and Astor House. Cures will be in attendance from 1 to 3 o'clock daily.

Get Rid of Your Cold at Once, or you may lose no making your lungs with a Cough, until at last they are irritated into a condition ripe for the production of tubercles; and then, instead of a simple easily cured affection, you will have to deal with Consumption. Dr. JAYNE'S EXPECTORANT will promptly cure all Coughs and Colds, and by imparting vigor to the respiratory organs, enable them freely to throw off obstructions engendered by neglected Colds, and heal all sore or inflamed parts. Sold everywhere.

The Seven of Health.

In prevalence with the Americans, is mainly attributable to some one of the many ordinary derangements of the body, affecting the surface of the blood, rendering it impure. Nature will generally bear a great deal of abuse, but there is a limit to her endurance, and when that is reached, she will let you know it by some decided indication of disease. Now, the great point is, what shall be done? Some people, when disease is detected, the equilibrium will assume their wonted health and vitality, sufficiently to retain the old and grow new hair in all the open follicles.

All cutaneous, capillary and other diseases which are from a loss of hair, or unsightly gray locks, are treated by special prescription only, by Dr. R. C. PERRY, Physician, Dermatologist, No. 49 Bond-st., New-York. No charge for consultation. Send for an interrogatory circular.

For Black Worms and Pimples on the Face, use PERRY'S CELEBRATED PIMPLE REMEDY. Sold by Dr. R. C. PERRY, No. 49 Bond-st., New-York. Sold by all druggists.

To Bagpipes Forever.—Dr. SHERMAN'S method is a guarantee cure. Office, No. 697 Broadway.

MARRIED.

BOONE—ELDRIDGE.—In Brooklyn, on Tuesday, April 5, at the residence of the bride's mother, by Rev. G. J. Lyon, Jr., SILAS J. BOONE to ANNIE, youngest daughter of the late R. Barrett Eldridge, all of Brooklyn. No cards.

DIED.

BEAT.—At Brooklyn, on Tuesday, April 5, WILLIAM, wife of Abraham Beat, aged 65 years, formerly of Rochester.

The relatives and friends of the family, also the members of the Friendly Association of New-York, are respectfully invited to attend the funeral from her late residence, No. 257 Lexington-av., corner of Willoughby-st., Brooklyn, on Thursday next, the 7th inst., at 2 o'clock P. M.

BOGART.—On Sunday morning, April 3, after a short and severe illness, DAVID S. BOGART, son of Alex. Bogart, and son-in-law of the late Dr. Chas. Cotton, of Newport, R. I., in the 28th year of his age.

Notice of funeral hereafter.

CARTER.—Suddenly, on Saturday, April 4, GALEN CARTER, M. D., in the 76th year of his age.

His relatives and friends, also the members of the Medical Society of the County of New-York, the officers and members of the New-York

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

There was a fair attendance at the Exchange yesterday, and the sales began with six auctioneers at their several stands. In several instances, however, the property announced was not actually disposed of. E. H. LINDEN & Co. put up the house No. 119 Second-avenue at $24,500, but receiving no bid, withdrew it. They then offered the house and lot No. 207 West Fifty-first-street at $26,500, with the usual result. The latter house was of brown stone, three stories, and located 120 feet west of Eighth-avenue.

The property at the corner of Eighth-avenue and Forty-first-street, sold by ADLER & ESCHWEGE, brought $38,000. It consisted of a three-story brick store, 24.2x70 feet, on a lot 42x100 feet, which sold for $21,300, and a four-story brick house in the rear of the same, on Forty-first-street, 25x37 feet, struck down at $11,600.

ROBERTS & MCGUIRE, two four-story high-stoop brown-stone houses, on the south side of Fifty-ninth-street, near Lexington-avenue, for $29,500 each, and a house and lot on Bergen-street, Brooklyn, for $7,800. These prices were very low for the property disposed of.

JOHNSON & MILLER continued their sales of Brooklyn property with satisfactory results. The bidding was much more spirited than for the City property offered, and the prices better. The particulars are given below.

A. J. BLEECKER, SON & CO.'s sale of country lots at Valley View, N. J., was not very successful. Owing to the damp and chilly weather, nobody felt in the mood for going to Jersey, and little disposition was shown to take up this property. After disposing of a few parcels, the auctioneers adjourned the sale until some time in May.

PROPOSALS.

PROPOSALS FOR BONDS.
WINONA AND ST. PETER RAILROAD COMPANY.
This Company offers for sale $600,000 of its First Mortgage and $240,000 of its Second Mortgage Seven Per Cent Bonds, which are authorized and issued for the construction and extension of its line of road from Winona to St. Peter, about 140 miles, in the State of Minnesota; 118 miles of which are already in operation, and fully equipped.
This Company is wholly owned by and operated in the interest of the Chicago and North-western Railway Company, and these Bonds, besides being a special and ample mortgage upon the road, are guaranteed, principal and interest, by the Chicago and North-western Railway Company by authority of the State of Minnesota.
The Bonds are a part of an issue of $20,000 per mile of the first mortgage, and $12,000 per mile of the second mortgage, respectively bearing interest at seven per cent, coupons payable semi-annually in New-York, the first mortgage interest on 1st of January and July, and the second mortgage on 1st of May and November.
Sealed proposals will be received until Monday, April 25, 1870, at 12 noon, by the Treasurer, A. L. Pritchard, to whom they should be addressed, at the office of the Chicago and North-western Railway Company, No. 52 Wall-st., New-York, where any further information will be given.
The Company reserves the right to reject any bids not considered for the interest in offering this first-class security. A. L. PRITCHARD, Treasurer Winona and St. Peter Railroad Company.

SHALL WOMEN VOTE?

Lecture by Anna E. Dickinson—An Earnest Appeal for the Rights of Woman.

Miss ANNA E. DICKINSON had what, considering the stormy weather, may be called a large audience at Steinway Hall, last evening. Her theme, though called by another name, was in some respects the string that she has so long played on. Her lecture was well delivered and abounded with eloquent passages.

After referring to her recent Western journey and giving a "sense of endlessness" as the chief impression derived from it, the lecturer considered the question of immigration. Lands had been, and more still were to be, acquired by us. With them came an increased population. What would we do with them? Were our laws to be intrusted to those who could not understand the language in which they were drafted? Should the West be governed by Asia as New-York was today governed by the Irish? In brief, looking at the vast foreign element in our midst, did we believe in pure Democracy, a government by the people; or in an aristocracy or a government by the best among us? The emigrants were the victims of fraud, wrong and lack of culture, and yet they governed us. After noticing the apathy indulged in by intelligent men who were too nice to soil their hands with the corrupting taint of the primary meeting, and stating that in some elections out of ten there was no prostituted their votes or else lost them, Miss DICKINSON said, that if the Republic was to stand it must be sustained by American men and women. She stood at the door of political life, and knocking, asked the men to let her in. They say, nay, not so; to cross this threshold is to degrade your womanhood; the work is corrupt and debasing. She did not ask to vote as a woman, nor did she demand any personal dignity, but she stood at the door as an American woman and citizen, loving her country as much as did the man. It was urged that the wealthy votaries of fashion would not vote. She admitted and thought that quite likely a woman with twenty pounds of hair on her head instead of brains in it, would not vote, and probably such a woman would be of but little service to the Government if she did vote. She herself was quite as willing to be governed by Dinah and Bridget as by Pompey and Patrick. The speaker then spoke of the class of women who would be most likely to use the ballot, and thought that a strong argument for woman suffrage lay in the fact that woman was more conscientious than man. What the Government needed was conscience, and not brains. Men and women joining together would tend to make the political whole more symmetrical. Again the speaker thought that the days of wars and conquests had gone by, when woman's weakness kept her from active life. Wars were no longer waged for conquest, and when they were waged for humanity alone, then their day was spent over. The questions of today were educational, social and religious. Who more interested in these questions than woman? Her interest was as great as man's. Was it urged that woman's work was at home? Man's profession was not politics, but in the pulpit, at the bar, in the field, &c. Yet who would not cry, if the voters were to be the professional politicians, "God save America!" Woman's voting would help man to a higher and a nobler manhood. She would plead against the injustice that men did themselves. Again, Miss DICKINSON did not believe that man, who could treat woman, who so much kindness, deference and courtesy in her home, would treat her coarsely and rudely when she stood by his side in political equality. The lecturer condemned in strong language the apathy of women toward what was their duty. The mother who pleaded in her noble soul sought to make her home pleasant, without seeking to straighten his path in life, and who would do nothing to better the condition of her erring sisters, would see her son's soul dragged to hell by the very women whom she had neglected to assist. The power, training, culture and influence which the ballot would confer would broaden woman's life and render it nobler and better. All should strive for the good time coming. No work that man had to do in the world but he was bettered for having a loving woman by his side; the reverse was also true, and the same was true with women. They should walk together in life and in death.

Miss DICKINSON was listened to with close attention, and warmly applauded as she quietly left the platform.

THE STORM ON THE HUDSON.

A Steam-boat Wrecked—Narrow Escape of her Passengers.

The terrible snow-storm and gale of Monday prevailed at all points on the Hudson River. The wind throughout Monday night blew a hurricane, and the blinding snow added greatly to the terrors of navigation on the Hudson, and in one instance resulted disastrously.

On the afternoon of Monday the propeller John Taylor, of the Schuyler line of Albany, left New-York for the former place. Soon after leaving the storm increased in fury, and she put into Thirty-fourth-street pier, where she lay some time, and then started again on her trip, stopping again several times till she reached Haverstraw, when it was concluded to go on at all hazards. This was at 1 P. M., and the storm was raging furiously. All the passengers, some thirty in number, had retired to their berths, the Captain and pilot taking their watch. The vessel passed through Peekskill Bay, the pilot, MICHAEL CORNOVAN, steering her by the compass, though the flying snow was so thick as to almost hide the bow of the boat from view. In about one minute after passing Roshook the Taylor ran on Cook's Island, a small collection of rocks just at the southern entrance to the Highlands. She must have been going moderately fast, as the ground along across the rocks, and at once broke in two in the middle. The consternation among the passengers was of course very great, and they rushed from their berths without their clothes, expecting to be engulfed in the waves which were rolling very high. As soon as they ascertained the cause of the shock, and upon learning that the steamer was not sinking, they hurriedly returned to their berths and dressed. By this time Capt. CHARLES MCALLISTER had the small boat lowered, into which the passengers became seated, and were rowed to the East shore, where they got upon the Hudson River Railroad track and walked to Peekskill, remaining there till the first up-train arrived, when they proceeded to Albany. As soon as they were all safely landed, as stated, the officers of the boat took a survey of the situation of their vessel. They found that where she broke in two the rocks had penetrated her hull, and by this means she was held as if in a vice, with only a slight list to the larboard. On either side of her the water is a hundred feet deep. Had she not been impaled as stated, she would have immediately sunk, and undoubtedly all on board would have perished. The boat is considered a total wreck, her aft-cabins being submerged. It is feared that she may slip off the rocks and sink. She was built in 1860, and had just commenced her trips for the season, having been thoroughly overhauled, repainted and refurnished throughout. She had a cargo worth $100,000. Among other things, it consisted of 100 barrels of sugar, 40 barrels of syrup, 150 chests of tea, and 200 boxes of lemons, all of which will be saved, as early Tuesday morning a schooner and a sloop were sent to the wreck, and the freight is being removed and taken to Peekskill, from which point it is to be shipped by railroad to Albany.

Historical Society—Interesting Relics—The Late Gulian C. Verplanck—Bean Marche.

The New-York Historical Society held its regular monthly meeting in the hall of the Society, corner of Eleventh-street and Second-avenue, last evening, Rev. Dr. DE WITT in the chair.

Among the communications which were read was one from FRANCIS COTTERET, Esq., of this City, accompanying a seal-ring, which was worn by Baron STEUBEN during his lifetime. WM. LLOYD GARRISON sent to the Society the original declaration of the Anti-Slavery Society, drawn up by the father of Mr. GARRISON. JONATHAN STURGES presented the names of the original subscribers to the New-York Gallery of Fine Arts.

Appropriate resolutions were passed on the death of the late GULIAN C. VERPLANCK, with direction that they be entered on the minutes of the Society, and a copy forwarded to the family of the deceased. A special committee having in charge the project of establishing in the Central Park a Museum of History, Antiquities and Art, reported favorably to the project, adding that the Legislature having promised the necessary ground, it remained for the patrons of history and art to immortalize themselves by providing the means for the erection of the buildings. Hon. JOHN BIGELOW read a paper on BEAU MARCHE, the author of The Barber of Seville. To BEAU MARCHE, he said, belonged the credit of forwarding the first necessary supplies for the colonies in their struggle against England. His efforts, however, seemed to have been misunderstood by Congress. In the letters of BEAU MARCHE'S correspondent, DE FRANCAIS, then in America, he is advised to send no more cannon, because the Americans had enough, also because they could make them themselves, and what was better, could take them from the enemy. His correspondent, DE FRANCAIS, also referred to DEANE, who at that time was in the civil service of the colonies, and was commissioning French officers without proper authority. This DEANE finally went over to the enemy. DE FRANCAIS at last became disgusted, stating in his correspondence that, however highly recommended French officers might come to America, they were regarded as adventurers and absolutely snubbed. DE FRANCAIS' criticism on the Revolutionary Fathers, as read by Mr. BIGELOW, was quite new and peculiar, regarding all of them as he did as very poor specimens of men either in their civil, military or naval qualifications. WASHINGTON alone being entitled to any degree of his praise. The claim of BEAU MARCHE against the United States was referred to and characterized as an instance of the ingratitude of Republics. A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. BIGELOW for the reading of the paper.

MEDICAL MALPRACTICE.

An Engineer Killed by an Accidental Overdose of a Prescription.

Coroner ROLLINS yesterday held an inquest in One Hundred and Sixty-second-street, between Tenth and Eleventh-avenues, over the body of JAMES O'NEIL, aged about eight, a native of Ireland, who died from the effects of morphine, given him by mistake instead of quinine by Dr. JOHN C. BROWN, of One-Hundred and Fifty-ninth-street and Tenth-avenue.

Martin SWAYNE testified that he is a fireman, Tenth-avenue and One Hundred and Fifty-second-street; on Saturday morning last he had brought his son's scripture from Dr. BROWNSON, which he had given at the office of Dr. BROWN, who gave him a powder of morphine instead of quinine, which he divided into eight powders; he put them up according to the prescription, and finding that Dr. BROWNSON'S powders were much smaller, he went back and bought another prescription from Dr. BROWNSON, which I could not make out, so I went to Mr. MARTIN, another druggist, as it was impossible for me to read the written in a blind way, so that no one could read it but Mr. MARTIN; the deceased's father came with me; we boxed up the second prescription and gave it to him, and said, his son was sick; I wanted to know if he could make him; I said Mr. MARTIN gave us the powders were given to him to make him sleep; I about three o'clock on Sunday afternoon; since eleven o'clock the night before, and about six of the powders had been given him; I put them into a bottle; Dr. BROWNSON I went after the prescription; I showed it to him, and remarked that I was afraid of the quantity of morphine; he said the morphine was all right, but that cubeba was not what he meant; he added that he would be responsible for what he had done; an hour after Dr. BROWN came and asked to see the prescription given by Dr. BROWNSON; he said, "I don't know how the mistake happened, but I'll take the blame on myself;" he said he would be responsible; I left the house.

[illegible] Sixty-ninth-street, at eleven o'clock on Saturday morning the deceased came with a prescription from Dr. BROWNSON, written as follows:

"Rx. sanabinum gr. v, to be divided into two powders, one to be given immediately in a glass of ale, the other in an hour if not relieved."

The ordinary way of writing the prescription would be morphine of morphia, but it was written as above by a blind man; but no one else could put it up; I gave it to Mr. MARTIN; the same morning deceased came with another prescription from Dr. BROWNSON calling for "½ oz. ofgrid extract of valerian, ext. sanabinum or morphia 4 gr. teaspoonful every hour;" a little more than half the bottle now shown is the one I put the medicine in; on Sunday evening I went to old O'NEIL was dying; two men came in and wanted copies of the prescription, and finding that Dr. FROTHINGHAM lived in the same house I referred to, I gave a copy; Capt. WILSON, of the Police, came afterwards and asked for an exact copy of the original; about half an hour after Dr. FROTHINGHAM and the Captain called and asked for an explanation of what was sanabinum; I refused to give it at first, but when they told me the man was dying, and that if they knew the nature of the drug they might give antidotes, I referred them to Dr. BROWNSON; at first I said I had no authority to give it; Dr. FROTHINGHAM said he would have nothing to do with Dr. BROWSON, and refused to accept a note from me; I then told the Doctor he had given the wrong prescription for morphia, as it had been given at the other store, and he then put up very; the prescription put up by Mr. SWAYNE called for eight grains of morphia sulphate and ten grains of cubeba, which, according to our blind method, sugar, though I do not mean to say that the substitution of cubeba for sugar killed the man; I do say that the narcotic properties of the morphine are increased by the combination of the cubeba; the ordinary dose of that drug is from one to ten grains; one drachm, in bulk making two teaspoonful, which is not poisonous; deceased was apparently under the influence of liquor when he came; I refused to give the explanation to Dr. FROTHINGHAM because I was so instructed.

Dr. JOHN C. BROWN testified that he had been at his own residence; deceased called upon him on Saturday and said he had the bloody colic; (Saint Vowsse,) and he gave him the two prescriptions described by the previous witness; deceased applied a third time for something to make him sleep, and he gave him the prescription made up by Mr. SWAYNE, calling for sulphate morphia eight grains, pulverized cubeba, meaning sugar, ten grains; when the patient was reported asleep he believed it was all right; Sunday afternoon he received the news of the immediate signs of congestion of the brain, though not narcotized; he sent for ammonia and tried to arouse him, without success; the deceased had awakened at four A. M. and asked his sister to hold his head, as he had a rush of blood there.

Dr. WM. FROTHINGHAM testified that he had been called to see the deceased on Sunday, after he had been given up by another physician; he found O'NEIL to be suffering from narcotic poison; his pupils were contracted to the size of a pin, pulse 120, respiration ten per minute, with occasional attempts between the regular ones; shortly after secretion of the quantity of morphia given, was of the opinion that it was enough to kill any man. [The remainder of the evidence of witness was of a corroborative character.] He was of the opinion that the deceased had congestion of the brain, which is always the case in opium poisoning.

The jury rendered the following verdict:

That the deceased came to his death by congestion of the brain, consequent upon a heavy dose of morphia, too frequently repeated, as prescribed by Dr. JOHN C. BROWNSON, of One Hundred and Fifty-ninth-street, for delirium tremens. We further censure said BROWSON for being in collusion with HENRY G. MARTIN, druggist, in writing prescriptions so easily misunderstood and well-known antidotes. We also censure said MARTIN for giving orders to his clerk not to reveal such secret terms.

The Coroner has not decided upon his course in the case, but will probably bring it before the Grand Jury at an early day. O'NEIL, the deceased, was a member of the Metropolitan Fire Department, and attached to Engine Company No. 38, on duty in that neighborhood.

Cuban Charitable Aid Society—Lecture by Hon. A. T. Requier.

Hon. A. T. REQUIER delivered a lecture at Cooper Institute, last evening, on "The House That Jack Built," for the benefit of the Cuban Charitable Aid Society, before a large audience. In adverting to the object for which the lecture was given, Mr. REQUIER reviewed the history of the Cuban revolt. Originating with twelve devoted, brave and self-sacrificing Cubans, in the short interval of eighteen months it had developed so rapidly in the face of fearful obstacles that it entitled those engaged in it to the rights of belligerents. Their bravery and devotion excited the sympathy and admiration of lovers of freedom the world over, and while they relied on their own manfled exertions in the attainment of their glorious purpose they asked and expected from the people of this great and free nation, sympathy and recognition. But alas! for the boasted love of freedom of the Government of the United States, the request is met with prompt and decisive refusal. Their its ships of war discovered within our waters are seized and confiscated, and the chief City of the Empire State is made a dock-yard, a magazine and an arsenal for the Spanish oppressor. The lecturer maintained that in its present policy toward Cuba our Government was untrue to the principles of the national Constitution which were based on universal liberty. The spirit of the Constitution in its grandeur and wisdom had provided for the struggling nationalities by legal enactments, but in this instance everything seemed to be forgotten in an ignoble dread of provoking the resentment of Spain. Even the justification of self-preservation and national advancement does not induce it to the performance of its duty, but it boldly and unblushingly violates and absolutely reverses it. He insisted that the action of the United States first called the Cubans to insurrection, for the people fully accorded them their sympathy and would ever give them their support, and it only remained for this Government to follow the path of duty and right, and recognize them as belligerents. In conclusion, the lecturer remarked that a cause blessed by so many martyrs and immortalized by the bravery of its supporters could not fail of success, and the beautiful isle would yet occupy the position among nations which God and nations designed she should maintain.

Bold Stroke for a Husband.

EDMUND SMITH, of Long Island, was yesterday accosted by MARY SIMPSON, who claimed him as her long-lost husband, JOB SIMPSON. A dispute arose between them in the James-slip ferry-house, when both were arrested and taken before Justice HOGAN. The woman persisted in her statement, and averred that SMITH had been a sailor, and had a tattoo mark on his arm representing a Highlander. He had married her several years ago, and lived with her a week, and then disappeared. He was well known at SMITH'S lodging-house in Front-street. Mr. SMITH was examined by the Sergeant, and no such tattoo mark was found, neither was he identified at the lodging-house. Mr. SAUNDERS, the Bowery carpet merchant, subsequently called at the Court, and stated that he had known Mr. SMITH since boyhood and pronounced the witness' story a complete mistake. The mystery bothered the Magistrate for a time when he finally ended the curious scene by dismissing the case, and sent both the man and woman out of the Court.

The Law Courts Yesterday—Continued Absence of Judge Barnard.

The Supreme Court General Term was in session yesterday, with Presiding Justice DONOHAN and Judges SUTHERLAND and CARDOZO on the Bench. It was occupied nearly the entire day in hearing appeals which have been taken from orders, claimed by lawyers to have been illegally and unjustly made within the last few months by Judge G. G. BARNARD, at Chambers and Special Term. The number of appeals which have been taken from the decisions of the Judge last named is so great that if the Court were to hear them all, it would occupy almost the whole term. Judge BARNARD, although he took particular pains to announce, more than two weeks ago, that there would be a Special Term commencing on the first Monday of April, and gave directions to the Clerk to make out a day calendar accordingly, has neither attended the Court himself, nor provided another Judge to hold the session in pursuance of his agreement with the members of the Bar and with the public at the time he asked to have notice thereof given in the papers. According to the published programme of the several terms of the Supreme Court of this district for 1872, there is no Special [illegible] Judge BARNARD [illegible] CARDOZO. Of the 10 Part of Term [illegible] were will adjourned, and that Judge [illegible] to Judge BARNARD [illegible] that the Court, [illegible] be opened [illegible] that he would hold a Special Term for Argument [illegible] was much astonishment, but never [illegible] lawyers who had cases ready [illegible] Judge BARNARD [illegible] they could for that [illegible]

All the working and practical lawyers of this City and Brooklyn know well what a remark of this kind means. Two days of the term have passed, the appellants, either in Germany or South Africa, the two Judges who sat [illegible] Court, and refused to take their oath of office, [illegible] SUTHERLAND, whose duties in the Court of Appeals for the year are sufficiently onerous, was compelled to sit in Judge BARNARD'S place on Monday and yesterday.

Who Must Bear the Railway Accident—Statement of the Road.

A gentleman who was a passenger by the train of the Erie Railway which met with such a serious accident on Tuesday, the 26th ult., makes a statement which will be interesting to the travellers by that road.

He says that after the accident he took the trouble to examine the position of the rail by the breaking of which the train was thrown from the track, and discovered that the danger which should have held it to the chair had been broken some time, as was evident from the fact that they were rusted. The sleeper immediately under the fractured rail was so rotten that he could readily thrust the point of his umbrella from the decayed timber. Upon pursuing his investigations further, he found that many other rails in the vicinity of the scene of the accident were imperfectly fastened to the chairs, and in one or two cases, especially, he was enabled to move the ends of the rail from their positions in the chair. The rotten sleeper was not occupied the entire chair, to the exclusion of its fellow.

The train was running at the rate of thirty miles an hour at the time of the accident, and was filled with passengers. The engine and baggage car remained on the track; the next car rolled over an embankment twenty feet and completely overturned; the next child down the embankment but rested right side up; the next plunged and first down the precipice, and would have taken fire had not the coals from the stove been extinguished by falling into the ditch; the next car collided with the end of the one next in advance and telescoped the forward end; the last two cars of the train remained on the track. The accident caused the utmost consternation among the passengers, occurring as it did about 6 o'clock in the morning, just as the inmates had awakened from their night's repose.

A Singular Case at Alleged Larceny and Fraud.

PHILIP GROSFELD was arraigned before Justice HOGAN at the Tombs yesterday to answer a charge of having made way with an India shawl, valued at $1,000, the property of Mrs. SILAS RAWSON, residing at the Metropolitan Hotel.

It appears that a few weeks ago GROSFELD, who is a dyer and scourer of clothing and other articles, purchased the dying establishment of GEO. A. HEARN, at No. 29 Union-square, and entered into possession of all the stock, implements and articles awaiting the call of the owners. Among these was the shawl. GROSFELD, on the 16th ult., called at the store of Messrs. ARNOLD, CONSTABLE & CO., corner of Nineteenth-street and Broadway, and purchased goods to the extent of $711 36 upon which he paid $600 in cash and tendered a check upon the Union-square Bank for the balance. The following day the check was found to be worthless, as GROSFELD had no account at the bank. Mr. BAKER, one of the firm of ARNOLD, CONSTABLE & CO., then informed GROSFELD that the $111 36 issued in the check must be paid, else he would be arrested as a swindler. As GROSFELD had no ready money he offered to give Mrs. RAWSON'S shawl as security for the amount. Mr. BAKER consented, and one of his clerks, named W. P. COLTE, gave GROSFELD a receipt for the shawl, written on a common card. Mrs. RAWSON called for her shawl a few days after and was informed that the shawl was not ready, which answer being repeated on a subsequent occasion, she became suspicious and gave the case to Detective McGOVERN, of the Fourteenth Precinct, who referred out the foregoing facts.

The Magistrate remanded GROSFELD to a cell in the Tombs to await examination and Mr. BAKER was requested to appear as a witness. The detective stated that he had considerable difficulty in inducing Mr. BAKER to appear in Court, the reason, however, not being very clearly explained.

German M. E. Conference Appointments.

The following are the appointments made by Bishop AMES, of Baltimore, at the close of the Eastern German M. E. Conference:

The Match Stamp Case—Testimony for the Defense.

The defense in the case of BENONA HOWARD, charged with having procured the engraving of a counterfeit plate for printing match stamps, introduced Prof. OGDEN DORENUS before Commissioner SHIELDS, yesterday, for the purpose of showing the corrosive action of salt water and air on metal. Subsequently he was requested to examine the alleged counterfeit plate, with a view to ascertaining whether it had been coated with wax, as was testified to by a witness for the prosecution, and to report the result at the next examination. Col. A. WEDDINGTON HART, formerly connected with the Stamp Bureau in the Internal Revenue Department, furnished testimony in favor of the defense, and the case underwent further examination was fixed for Friday next.

Assistant District-Attorney PURDY appeared for the Government and Messrs. BLANKMAN and HUNTINGTON for the accused.

History of Music—Lecture by Prof. F. L. Ritter.

Prof. FREDERIC LOOMIS RITTER commenced a repetition of his course of lectures on the "History of Music," at the hall of the Young Men's Christian Association last evening. Owing to the unpleasant weather, the audience was small, but the Professor concluded to read his first lecture to the few appreciative listeners.

He began with the introduction of vocal music into the worship of the early Christians, and gave an interesting account of the growth of church music and the origin of the Gregorian chant. He also gave an account of the Troubadours and the invention of harmony, bringing the history of music down to the latter part of the fourteenth century. He illustrated on the piano the progress of the art, and gave several specimens of the airs of the Troubadours. The second lecture of the course will be given on Saturday evening, and will cover the period of Catholic Church music and the madrigal.

Town Elections in Queens County.

Owing to the storm which has prostrated the telegraph wires on the island, but few returns can be had. In Flushing, Jamaica and Newtown the Democratic candidates for Supervisors have all been re-elected. E. A. LAWRENCE, without opposition, in Flushing; in Jamaica, JAMES NOSTRAND, and CHAS. COVERT in Newtown.

There was quite a contest in Newtown, there being five tickets in the field, and owing to the failure of the District bill before the present Legislature, only one polling place, at Newtown village. The Flushing Railroad Company sold over 1,500 tickets at Hunter's Point for this election, and among their passengers were a large number of New-York roughs. A squad of thirty policemen, with a Captain and five Sergeants, from New-York, were on hand to keep order. About forty arrests were made through the day for illegal voting.

A Contemptible Business.

J. S. COLGATE, arrested on a charge of mailing obscene photographs through the Post-office, waived an examination in the United States Commissioners' office yesterday, and was subsequently held to await the action of the Grand Jury. The accused, it is alleged, was in the habit of giving the letter-carrier on his route large numbers of obscene circulars to post for him.

Special Agent GAYLER received a letter from the father of a young lady in Connecticut, stating that the writer's daughter had received one of the circulars in question. Mr. GAYLER caused the next batch of circulars intrusted to the carrier, and on opening the envelopes and examining the circulars, found them to be of the most obscene and disgusting character. COLGATE is in jail, in default of $5,000 bail, and is likely to remain there, as he can find no gentleman.

NEW-YORK.

The archway between Vesey and Barclay streets, under which the men of the Sixth and Eighth-avenue horse railroads pass on their trips from town, was yesterday officially reported to the Department for the Survey and Inspection of Buildings as unsafe. A notice will be served on the companies today requiring these footways to render it secure, and if this is not complied with a survey will be ordered by Superintendent MCGEGAN, and the structure put in such condition as that the possibility of danger to future accidents will thus be avoided.

The Vestry of St. Thomas' Church have rented their present place of worship, Church of the Resurrection, corner of Forty-seventh-street and Madison-avenue, until October next. It is expected that the new church will be ready for use by the 1st of August, as the interior work is already advancing rapidly. But with a view to the thorough seasoning and [illegible] of the church will not [illegible] when the pews will be offered for sale, or rent, as the Vestry may decide. The usual weekly meeting of the Farmers' Club of the American Institute was held at the Cooper Institute last afternoon. Apples, ploughing, potatoes, improving horses, boys in farmers' families, practical agriculture, and various other matters were discussed. A full report of the proceedings of the Club will be found in the WEEKLY TRIBUNE, ready to-morrow morning.

A preliminary meeting was held at the Harvard Rooms, corner of Forty-second-street and Sixth-avenue, last evening, with a view to organizing a Hebrew Immigrants' Aid Society. Thomas H. Kessing, I. S. Isaacs, I. A. W. Kohn, M. Billinger, P. J. Joachimsen, H. B. Hertz, L. J. Salomon, A. Cohen, Rev. Dr. Gutheim, and Jacob Korn, constituted themselves a committee to solicit subscriptions for membership at $5 a year. It was agreed to organize permanently when the number of subscribers reaches 100.

The funds collected by the German Hospital Aid Society, of this City, for the benefit of that institution, from Sept. 20 last, when the Society organized, up to today, amount to $2,261 30.

The calendar in the Court of Special Sessions, yesterday, before Justices LEDWITH, DOWLING and BERRY, was exceedingly light. Several light sentences were imposed. A boarding-house keeper, Thomas and CONRAD STERLING, was sent to the Penitentiary for four months for beating his wife.

Mr. JOHN B. GOUGH lectures to-morrow evening, at Cooper Institute, in aid of the Home for Friendless Women. The cause is a noble one, and the orator will doubtless have a large audience. He ought to.

Judge CARDOZO, of the Supreme Court, General Term, yesterday performed a marriage ceremony in room No. 18 New Court-house, between Mr. MORRIS ROSSWEIRAL and Miss ERNESTINE KELLER. The sum of one hundred cents was presented to Chief Officer JACOB VAN BRUNT by the new-made husband, as a reward for his services in preparing for the ceremony and obtaining the marriage certificate.

At an early hour yesterday morning TIMOTHY O'KEEFE, aged eighteen, of No. 126 Washington-street, and JOHN DONIVAN, aged sixteen, quarreled over a game of cards, and during the scuffle which caused DONIVAN stabbed O'KEEFE in the face with a pocket-knife, inflicting severe wounds. DONIVAN succeeded in making his escape, and is still at large.

The new hotel, called the Mansion House, at Roselle, on the line of the Central Railroad of New-Jersey, is now open.

Rev. HORACE COOK, with whom the public are well acquainted, has demanded a trial at the hands of the New-York East Conference, which assembled today, in the Seventh-street M. E. Church, in this City. He has employed an eminent lawyer, and will seek to excuse his conduct by proving temporary insanity. The trial will be conducted privately before a committee, and not in open conference.

The New-York Stock Exchange voted yesterday in favor of erecting a new Exchange. The vote stood 180 for, and 141 against the proposition. The Governing Committee are instructed to procure a building, and will probably agree to the plan submitted last week by property-owners in the vicinity to erect a structure adjoining the present one.
